'Bloody Sunday' Was Rehearsal!

There has been so much Russian blood spilled by Russians since 1917 it is almost ironically amusing that January 9, 1905, should have been noted in the prerevolutionary history of that vast country as "Bloody Sunday."

One is reminded of it by the present-day riots in the Soviet sector of Berlin, in other areas of East (Russian-held) Germany, and by reports of troubles in satellite nations.

These demonstrations are being put down as ruthlessly as were those on "Bloody Sunday" 48 years ago.

On that blood-red and significant day it was the city workers, as it was in Berlin, who exploded in protest against the government policies. Then the peasant, or farmer, had long been in stubborn resistance in Russia as he is today, more particularly, in the once-food-surplus countries of Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia where hunger exists.

The 1905 march of workers was supposed to be peaceful—as was the one in Berlin on June 17 when 5,000 workers, the noise of their wooden clogs making a great rasping sound, marched with permission, to protest production requirements and prices. It got out of hand and the real feelings of the workers about their Soviet masters rose to the top and set them off in a frenzy.

January 9, 1905

On January 9, 1905, a huge crowd of workers, led by an Orthodox Russian priest named Gapon, who had organized some factory workers to better their condition, led a huge crowd of them to the Tsar's Winter Palace to present a petition. They carried church ikons and pictures of the Tsar. Their belief was that "bad people" about their ruler kept him from the facts. These they had in their petition.

The Tsarist guards, victims of propaganda, were nervously expecting a hostile approach. One excited guard, "trigger happy," fired. The bullet went into the ground, but it touched off a general volley from the excited troops. These went into bodies.

Strikes followed—as they came on the heels of the June 17 riot. The fever of it spread to the peasants and to distant cities. Some small measure of this has today been produced in Soviet Germany. (In that year of 1905 a young agitator calling himself "Koba" headed an oil-field strike. Later he was known as "Stalin.")

In October of that year the workers in Petersburg formed a council and elected as its chairman a young man named Leon Trotsky. In December there was a strike in Moscow, but it was put down, and by 1907, when the Duma (parliament) was broken up with the arrest of 55 of its members, the Tsar's regime breathed easier.

There were others who breathed faster. One was the young Lenin who, a refugee in Switzerland when "Bloody Sunday" occurred, had hurried secretly back to Russia.

Rehearsal?

In later years Lenin described that revolution of 1905 as "the general rehearsal" for that of 1917. The Tsar who had sighed with relief in 1907 had then only a few years to live before he and his family were to fall before ruthless revolutionary guns.

It is too early to evaluate the open unrest and anti-Soviet feelings now so evident. Guns are putting them down. The executioner is busy. The Soviets are employing the methods used by the Tsar in 1905 and 1907.

There must certainly be a tempest in the Kremlin. The issue of the struggle for power there may soon be resolved. The faction which decided to ease and relax the iron discipline of the government directed by Stalin, and to halt nationalization and Communist Sovietization of farms, small industries and businesses in the satellite countries, will be hard put to it to retain its position. Those who believed in the iron fist of Stalin will be saying, "We told you so."

But, what neither faction can avoid is that the workers and the peasants, the two foundation stones of the Communist party, have revealed what they think of the Soviet system. They despise it. There is a chance this may be a rehearsal.

GERMANY PAYS TRIBUTE TO RIOT VICTIMS
Seven Coffins Lie in West Berlin City Hall As Thousands Honor Dead

2 More Put to Death As Rioters, Reds Say

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

BERLIN, June 23—Official East German reports today said that two more persons had been executed on charges of having played leading roles in East Berlin's uprising last Wednesday.

As this news reached here Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and Mayor Ernst Reuter led West Berlin in mourning the deaths of seven persons shot during the riots. They lay in seven coffins in front of City Hall as massed thousands heard the memorial ceremonies.

The eighth coffin lay empty in honor of Willi Goettling, an unemployed West Berlin painter who was executed by a Soviet firing squad for his alleged role in the riots.

STRANDED WORKERS

Meanwhile, several thousand East Berlin workers who had been driven across the border into the American sector during the fighting were still in West Berlin, afraid to return to their homes. Red Cross officials said they alone had 1,600 such persons.

Likewise, the police said that 218 West Berliners have been missing since the day of the riot. It was assumed that most of them were trapped in the Soviet sector.

One of those executed in East Germany, according to the newspaper Neues Deutschland, official Communist organ in East Berlin, was Erna Dorn, 42, who had been imprisoned after the war for her activities as head of the women's concentration camp at Ravensbrueck.

On Wednesday the workers broke open the political prison and released the inmates, including a number of former Nazis. Erna Dorn was charged with then leading the riofers to commit various alleged misdeeds. On Monday she was sentenced to death by a court at Halle.

"BANDIT DIENER"

Another person in Jena, identified by Neues Deutschland only as "the bandit, Diener," was ordered shot by the Soviet commandant for his role as an alleged ringleader of the crowd there. The Zeiss Optical Works at Jena were the scene of the strike and disorders.

Neues Deutschland gave further details of the riot in that city. The workers stormed the offices of the Socialist Unity (Communist) Party, hurled papers and books into the streets and burned them. The interior of the Free German Youth Head-

Home Aid Seen Easing Battey Load

State and local health officials are considering a home-treatment plan for tuberculosis patients which they hope eventually will remove 300 to 400 patients from Battey Hospital, Dr. T. F. Sellers, state health commissioner, said Tuesday.

"Many persons at Battey who are being treated by drugs can be cared for locally, under supervision of local health officials or their private physicians," Dr. Sellers said. "We are working out plans to send home selected patients aproved by the hospital to be treated by drugs at home."

City and county health commissioners spent last week watching the operation of Battey Hospital, and in conference on plans for treating tuberculosis, Dr. Sellers reported. It was the first time since Battey opened a few years ago that the local health officials have met at the hospital.

When the home-treatment plan removes some patients from Battey, additional beds will be available for other patients, Dr. Sellers pointed out. At present, there is a waiting list of 80 Negroes seeking admittance. There are a few white men on the waiting list, but no white women, he added.

Dane Socialists Oppose Bases

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, June 23—(AP)—The Danish Socialist Party announced today they would bar the United States and North Atlantic Treaty Organization from obtaining peacetime air bases in Denmark.

Hans Hedtoft, chairman of the Danish Social Democrats, told a party congress the Socialists would oppose Allied use of Danish air bases at this time. Allied use of the bases could not be approved in the Danish Parliament without the Socialist support.

Bolt, Fire Knock Out Power Unit

Fire caused by lightning Tuesday afternoon's thunderstorm destroyed the Davis Street transit power switchboard, which supplied electricity for a portion of the Atlanta transit system.

No one was injured when the bolt struck the switchboard in the brick building, owned by the Georgia Power Company.

TORRENTS

Torrential rains that accompanied the thunderstorm flooded many Atlanta streets, snarling traffic for blocks. Among the hardest hit areas were Butler and Gilmer Streets, S. E., North Avenue and the Expressway near 14th Street.

Power company officials said the storm caused surprisingly little damage to power lines. Two circuits — at North Druid Hills and at Panthersville — were knocked out of commission, but were back in operation within 40 minutes.

COOLING

The thunderstorm's cooling rains brought quick relief to Atlantans sweltering under 90-degree heat, but the weatherman forecasts more hot weather for Wednesday.

The Atlanta Weather Bureau predicts partly cloudy skies and continued hot temperatures for Wednesday and Thursday, with a chance of thundershowers Wednesday afternoon or evening and Thursday afternoon.

Temperatures are expected to range between 72 and 92 degrees Wednesday and Thursday. Tuesday's extremes were 72 and 90 degrees.

Reds Hurl New Blows At Center

5,000-6,000 Hit Road Defenses

By ROBERT VERMILLION

TOKYO, Wednesday, June 24—(AP)—Chinese Communist troops exploded heavy new attacks along the Korean central front early today, breaking a 5-day "little armistice" on the last day of the Korean War's third year.

Two full regiments of Chinese troops—5,000 to 6,000 men—slammed into Sniper Ridge and Bomerang Hill, key Allied defense positions guarding Kumwha and the vital east-west highway behind United Nations lines.

3-HOUR FIGHT

American troops of the Third Infantry Division and South Koreans of the ROK Ninth Division hurled back one of the thrusts in three and a half hours of furious close-in fighting.

The Eighth Army reported, however, that fresh Chinese forces were pouring into the assault on Sniper Ridge, defended by the South Koreans. The ridge is situated five miles east of Bommerang Hill.

The Communist attacks were preceded by 36,500 rounds of artillery and mortar fire that turned the rain-soaked ridges into a land of flying mud and steel.

BAD FLYING WEATHER

Bad flying weather limited activities of Allied warplanes in their blasting of Red troop and supply concentrations. Rain pelted most of the Korean peninsula Tuesday and early today.

The new outbreak of fighting on the central front followed five days of progressively lighter probing actions across the cease-fire line which reportedly was drawn at Panmunjom.

ATTACKS REPULSED

South Korean troops repulsed two small-scale Chinese attacks Tuesday and sent patrols to probe Red lines along the 15-mile bulge in Allied lines which cost the Communists 10,000 killed and wounded.

A company of Chinese, estimated at up to 200 men, rushed over an outpost near Christmas Hill early Tuesday but were beaten back after an hour of close fighting by South Korean defenders. The Reds lost 10 men killed and 15 wounded.

Living Cost Rises .3 Pct. To '53 Peak

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP)—Another slight rise sent the cost of living as of May 15 to its highest point this year, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

The increase between April 15 and May 15 amounted to approximately three tenths of one per cent. It did not affect any of the major labor wage contracts which are geared to fluctuations in living costs.

Rising for the third straight month after a drop in February, the cost as measured by the bureau's monthly index moved up to 114 per cent of the 1947-49 average, compared with 113.7 on April 15 and 113.1 per cent in May of last year.

The figure was a full 12 per cent above the level in June, 1950, when the Korean War broke out.

Everything went up except transportation costs, the bureau said, led by rents up .7 per cent; food prices up .5 per cent and the cost of medical care up .4 per cent.

Eisenhower's Choices Okayed

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee today approved these nominations:

L. Corrin Strong of Washinton, D. C., ambassador to Norway.

M. Robert Guggenheim of Washinton, D. C., ambassador to Portugal.

John C. Baker of Athens, Ohio, U. S. representative to the 16th session of the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations.

Korean Casualties

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP)—The Defense Department today identified 51 Korean War casualties in a new list (No. 840) that reported eight killed, 38 wounded, one missing, two captured and two injured.

U. S. Rejects Rhee's 'Price for Peace' as Totally Unacceptable

Chinese Call 7 American Priests Spies

By HENRY R. LIEBERMAN
New York Times News Service
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

HONG KONG, June 23—Twenty-three persons, including a group of foreign Catholic missionaries encompassing at least seven Americans and two Fench priests, have been arrested in Shanghai on charges of carrying on alleged espionage activities "under the guise of religion," it was disclosed today.

The arrests were announced in the June 16 issue of the Shanghai newspaper Hsin Wen Jih Pao, a copy of which has just reached Hong Kong.

THOSE ARRESTED

Letters received by the Catholic welfare center here said the arrested Americans included Fathers Joseph McCormack of New York City; Thomas Phillips of Butte, Mont.; John Houle of Glendale, Calif.; Joseph Gatz of Los Angeles; John Baptist Palm of Baltimore, and John Clifford and Charles McCarthy, both of San Francisco.

The letters received from Shanghai said the nine missionaries were removed to jail on the night of June 15 in a roundup that also led to the arrests of a number of Chinese priests. The arrests were said to have taken place at the Church of Christ the King and in St. Peter's and St. Francis parishes.

GANGSTERS' TAG

There was no immediate information here on the status of Bishop James E. Walsh, American director of the Catholic administrative organization in Shanghai. Bishop Walsh was formerly superior general of the Maryknoll order.

Following the June roundup the newspaper Hsin Wen Jih Pao told its Shanghai readers that those taken into custody were "imperialist gangsters" and "well-known spies" who had been "utilizing the Catholic Church to carry out espionage activities." The newspaper added:

"Some of them were deeply implicated with American imperialists and the puppet Chiang Kai-shek. After liberation these men gave no signs of remorse, reform or conversion."

House Probers Refuse To Call Justice Clark

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—The House judiciary committee refused today to subpoena Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark for grilling about Justice Department operations during his four years as attorney general. The vote was 22 to five.

Chairman Reed (Rep., Ill.) said there was general agreement among committee members that Clark is not immune and that Congress has the right to subpoena him. A major factor in the decision not to do so, Reed said, was the probable difficulty of getting a contempt citation through the House in the event Clark refused to obey the subpoena.

Dulles Aides Arrive; Eye Next Move

By RUTHERFORD POATS

TOKYO, June 24 — (AP) — The United States met South Korean President Syngman Rhee headon today and said his Korean armistice proposals were completely "unacceptable."

High-ranking American officials in Washington made it clear that Rhee's three-point "price for peace" had been rejected.

Three American assistant secretaries of state prepared to meet in Tokyo to discuss the United States' next move in the armistice crisis as Chinese troops exploded new attacks on the Central Front.

WILL CONFER WITH CLARK

Walter Robertson, assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs flew to Japan for urgent conferences with Gen. Mark Clark and other officials on a possible compromise to end the war which will be three years old tomorrow.

Rhee's terms called for the withdrawal of Chinese Red troops from Korea, or the simultaneous withdrawal of all foreign troops; limitation of the post-armistice political conference to a 90-day period, and a mutual security pact between South Korea and United States.

Robertson, it was understood, will offer Rhee a new mutual security pact between the U. S. and South Korea. It may be in the form of a message to Rhee from Secretary of State Dulles. Undoubtedly it has President Eisenhower's okay and is conditioned on Rhee's agreeing to accept the truce.

ACCOMPANIED BY COLLINS

Robertson was accompanied on his flight from Washington by Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs Carl McCardle, and Army Chief of Staff General Collins.

They will meet in Tokyo with Clark and his political adviser, Robert D. Murphy, whose promotion to assistant secretary of state

Senate Unit Votes Aid to Buford Dam

Special to The Constitution

WASHINGTON June 23 — A Senate appropriations subcommittee today recommended that $8,000,000 be allocated for continuation of construction of Georgia's Buford Dam.

The subcommittee's recommendation restores all but $500,000 of the $3,500,000 the House whacked from President Eisenhower's recommendation.

The House slash was strongly protested by Georgia congressmen. Senator Russell had said he had "high hopes" of restoring some if not all of the amount which the House had cut from the President's recommendation.

Atlanta area interests have urged that the project be completed to allow the government and the people to get the benefit of extra power, flood conrol, recreation and river regulation.

The Senate subcommittee today also recommended appropriation of $2,500,000 for the Clark Hill Reservoir in Georgia and South Carolina. The figure equals the House's recommended appropriation.

The Senate appropriations group also approved an allocation of $130,000 for planning the Hartwell Reservoir between Hartwell, Ga., and Anderson, S. C. The Hartwell project was one of 12 approved in a $2,850,000 budget for planning of flood control and navigation projects.

Mob Assaults Korean Opposed To Rhee Stand

SEOUL, June 24—(INS)—Dr. Chough Pyung Ok, leader of organized South Korea opposition to President Syngman Rhee's armistice stand, was hunted down and viciously beaten today by "patriots" after a mob of 500 stormed through his Seoul house in search of him.

The mob violence flared following the appearance of posters on the streets of Seoul branding Chough as a "traitor."

Chough said that it would be "national "suicide" for the Korean government to withdraw its troops from United Nations command as Rhee has indicated he might do.

Choked Her Until She Was Limp, Police Quote Youth on Girl's Death

By LEE FUHRMAN

David Gene Price, 18, slightly-built, brown-haired next-door neighbor to Miss Betty Bagby, whose mutilated body was found Monday in a wooded area off Peyton Road, N. W., has admitted he "choked her until she was limp," Superintendent of Detectives Glynn Cowan reported Tuesday night.

Superintendent Cowan said Price is being held without bond on a charge of suspicion of murder, and a murder indictment will be sought Friday before the grand jury as soon as "some loose ends of the case are tied up."

The police official said Price admitted the slaying in a statement written in Price's own hand and which he signed.

While declining to release a verbatim account of the statement, Supt. Cowan said the statement by Price told of having sexual relations with the victim, having an argument with her and afterwards choking her until her body was limp.

The statement also said, according to Cowan, that Price then dropped a rock on her head. In this connection, Cowan said police have recovered a blood-stained rock, with human hair attached, as part of the evidence in the case.

Cowan said the statement further referred to mutilation of the victim's body, with Price stating he "didn't remember," but that "I could have done it."

The Price statement also contained a reference to possession of a knife which Price said he threw "into the woods," the officer reported. Police are seeking this knife, Cowan said.

Detectives have in their possession the trousers and shirt worn by the youth on the night of the crime, Cowan said, adding the clothes had been cleaned, but showed "some sort of stain."

The clothes will be sent to the police laboratory for checking of the stains, Cowan said.

Price's statement contradicted the first statement he gave police Monday night following discovery of Miss Bagby's body, Cowan said.

His original statement was broken, Cowan said, after several persons in the neighborhood of the crime scene said they had seen Price and Miss Bagby on a bus going from downtown to the

Mr. Peepers the Duck Has Gone to the Dogs

He wants to find out what's ailing Mr. Peepers, a duck which sometimes acts like a dog and won't take a dip in the college pond.

Dr. E. L. Blevins is handling the perplexing problem but he admits he hasn't made much headway with Mr. Peepers' strange habits.

It all started when the young duckling was brought to the veterinary clinic with a broken leg. Dr. Blevins mended the leg and Mr. Peepers was soon back on his feet with just a slight limp.

He convalesced in a cage in the clinic with dogs as his neighbors. Now he's following Blevins around like a dog. He'll take a dip in the clinic bathtub but refuses to go into the college pond.

In fact, he ripped into other ducks who waddled out of the pond as if they were mortal foes. Blevins took Mr. Peepers back to the clinic to keep peace on the campus.

Blevins figures that the duck was so young when he left home that he doesn't remember he's a duck.

"He's been in here with the dogs so long, he thinks he's a dog," Blevins said. "The only place he feels at home is in the clinic."

Not Playing In Politics, Kaiser Says

Promises to Fire Official if Guilty

By WILMOT HERCHER

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP)—Henry Kaiser and his son, Edgar, rulers of a vast industrial empire, clashed with senators today over the price they are charging the government for airplanes and over whether Kaiser executives have been playing politics.

The elder Kaiser said he would probably fire any employe he found taking one side or the other in senatorial campaigns.

He told members of the Senate armed services subcommittee that he is "dead against" such practices and that he has not contributed to any campaign—"Although judging from what other companies are doing, maybe that's the way to get contracts."

CHARGES OPPOSITION

Politics came up when Sen. Symington (D-Mo), a member of the subcommittee and former secretary of the Air Force, charged that "one of the highest officials" of the Kaiser organization actively opposed him in his senatorial campaign last fall.

Symington said the individual also tried to get information from the Air Force to use against him in the campaign.

Kaiser promised to fire the official immediately if the senator would name him and the charge was substantiated.

"We will have him come before this committee and make a statement," Symington said after thinking the matter over.

CHARGES FLY OVER C-119

Charges and countercharges flew across the hearing room as the father-and-son team appeared to defend their record in the production of C-119 cargo planes for the Air Force.

Sen. Bridges (R-NH), subcommittee chairman, told the Kaisers their production costs for the big aircraft were five times as much as those of the Fairchild Engine and Aircraft Corp.

In turn, Henry Kaiser accused Fairchild of "dragging its feet" on a contract to give the Kaisers technical aid on the C-119 contract.

He testified that Fairchild did the early engineering of the C-119, which normally would be expected to reduce Kaiser costs, but he said one of Fairchild's employes has stated that Fairchild sent "75 per cent wrong tools and information," plus many wrong parts, to the Kaiser plant.

CALLS FOR STATEMENT

Sen. Byrd (D-Va) asked the Kaisers to provide the Senate group with a complete list of the companies they control, the government contracts they hold and the government loans they have been granted.

"Henry, you can't deny that you have borrowed more money from the government than anybody else in the history of the United States," Symington said. Kaiser joined in the laughter that followed.

DEATH CLOSES IN—UKIAH, Calif., June 23—A fraction of a second after this picture was taken at the Ukiah Fair Grounds, Harold Pine, 25, of Albuquerque, N. M., was killed. The stunt driver was supposed to come off a ramp, hit the car in front of him and then do a complete somersault, landing right side up. Instead the car pancaked and Pine's neck was broken.

Britisher Sobs Story of Murders

LONDON, June 23 (AP) — John Christie, sometimes weeping, mumbled to a jury in Old Bailey Court today that he wasn't sure how many women he strangled—but his lawyer admitted at least seven had been done to death in "sex madness."

The balding, 55-year-old clerk told his terrifying story with head bowed—his voice so low that the jury of nine men and three women leaned forward with ears cupped in hands to hear.

Defense Counsel Derek Curtis-Bennett led the meek-looking Christie on gently in direct examination after describing his client as "mad as a March hare when he kills people."

Christie broke down and wept as he described his wife's death—the 54-year-old woman of whose murder he is specifically accused.

They were in bed together, he said, when:

"Her face was bluish and she seemed to be choking. I did not like to see her like that. Then I put her to sleep. I saw a stocking there on the bed and tied it around her neck."

Christie seemed in a daze as he told his sordid story from the same witness stand where his straightforward testimony four years ago helped send another man to the gallows.

Today Christie admitted in a statement read to the court that he had murdered the man's pretty young wife.

Timothy Evans, 25, was hanged in 1949 for murdering his infant daughter who was found dead in the 10 Rillington Place "death house" with her mother.

Christie shouted at the Evans trial "it's a lie" when he was accused of the murder by Evans' lawyer.

Today Christie was asked at his own murder trial about the deaths of Mrs. Evans and her baby.

Q. Did you deny it?

A.—I did deny it.

Q.—Why did you lie about Mrs. Evans?

Sofia Okays Greek Row Commission

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., June 23—(AP)—Communist Bulgaria, in an about-face, has agreed to the establishment of a border commission to settle its frontier dispute with Greece, the United Nations announced tonight.

The shift in Bulgaria's position appeared to be another gesture toward the western countries by Russia and her satellites.

The offer to accept the proposal for a border commission, made months ago by Greece, was contained in a cablegram from Bulgarian Foreign Minister Mintcho Neitchev. Neitchev said Bulgaria would accept the proposal "in order to create the necessary conditions for the establishment of good neighborly relations between Bulgaria and Greece."

The Bulgars, however, stipulated in the cablegram to UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold that the commission to settle the border dispute should comprise representatives of the two countries "without the participation of a representative of the United Nations."

Neitchev's cablegram suggested that the proposed commission "should begin to function as soon as possible."

Skipper Who Aided Eisler Seeks Refuge in England

LONDON, June 23—(UP)—Commodore Jan Cwiklinski, master of the Communist merchant marine liner Batory on which bail-jumping Gerhart Eisler escaped from the United States, and the ship's medical officer have "jumped ship" in England, it was announced tonight.

The British Home Office announced that Cwiklinski has asked for political asylum in Britain. But the government said it did not know where the medical officer was.

The Home Office said Cwinklinski's request for refuge was "under consideration."

LINER SAILED SATURDAY

The skipper and the medical officer did not sail with the 14,287-ton liner when it left Newcastle-on-Tyne Saturday night for the voyage to Poland, the Home Office said.

Officers of the British criminal investigation division, had been investigating the disappearance of the medical officer last Wednesday. His name was not immedaitely revealed.

The Batory had been in England the past six weeks for refitting.

As captain of the Batory, Cwiklinski on May 6, 1949, helped Eisler sneak aboard the liner and escape to Communist-controlled East Germany.

FREE ON BOND

Eisler was free at the time on $23,500 bond while awaiting sentence on charges of contempt of Congress and making false statements in an application for an exit permit.

Cwiklinski is a 51-year-old veteran of the Polish merchant marine. He had been skipper of the Batory ever since it was reactivated in 1947 as the pride of the Communist-run Polish lines.

Shipping men who knew Cwiklinski said he was not sympathetic to the Polish Communist regime, but was "a victim of circumstances." They said his family, a wife and two children, were last known to be in Gdynia, Poland.

"He knew they were under surveillance," one shipping man said. "I only hope he was able to get them out before he abandoned his command."

Alien Called Bodyguard of Eisler Arrested

NEW YORK, June 23—(UP)—An alien declared to have been a bodyguard to Communist leader Gerhart Eisler was arrested by immigration agents today along with a British-born ex-convict accused of hobnobbing with key figures in the underworld.

Felix Kusman, reputed to have been a bodyguard for Eisler, who was once the nation's No. 1 Communist, was picked up with Louis Shomberg, who has a criminal record dating back to 1913. Both are facing deportation as undesirable aliens.

Edward J. Shaughnessy, district immigration commissioner, said a hearing would be held tomorrow for Shomberg, said to have been a pal of jailed gangster Frank Costello and Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, executed racketeer murderer.

Snake Charmer's Boy Friend Held After She's Shot in Row Over Friends

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., June 23—(UP)—A mild-mannered "exotic dancer" with a fondness for snakes was shot four times today in an ocean front hotel lobby during a quarrel with her jealous boy friend over "the company" she kept, according to police reports.

Physicians removed four .38-caliber slugs from the chest, wrist and abdomen of the 21-year-old night club entertainer who used the stage name "Mickey Reese." Detectives said her name was either Thelma Rose Hemphrey or Thelma Rose Reidmiller.

By COLIN FROST

EDINBURGH, Scotland, June 23 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth's flashing smile won a roaring welcome from 200,000 Scots today. Official fears of nationalist demonstrations against her promptly subsided.

Crowds packed 12 deep threw off their traditional reserve as the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh drove to the Palace of Holyrood where they will stay during a week of ceremonies to mark her coronation.

Police had feared that discontented nationalists might use the Queen's visit to grab the spotlight with some form of demonstration, or that Scots' disapproval of the title "Elizabeth II" might keep crowds away.

Scarlet and gold uniforms of the Queen's Household Cavalry gave a foretaste of the more elaborate spectacle to come tomorrow when the Queen drives in state to join her people in a national service of dedication to God.

That service will bring to St. Giles' Cathedral, high kirk of the Scottish church, a congregation of 1,700 representing all aspects of Scottish life.

The skirl of bagpipes and the crash of guns welcomed the Queen as her own carriage drawn by four grey horses clattered into the forecourt of Holyrood House.

Later, around 10,000 people watched the Queen and her husband each plant a Japanese cherry tree in one of the city's parks. The day's program wound up with a presentation party at the palace. Four hundred Scottish debutantes were brought before the Queen to make the traditional curtsey.

About 722,000 people are employed in Great Britain's coal industry.

We Have Fallen For Rhee's Trap

Comparisons are odious and usually unprofitable, but it needs to be pointed out that if the Truman State department was awkward and negative with regard to Korea, the Eisenhower administration in its dealings with Syngman Rhee is making Dean Acheson and his staff look quite good.

Obviously, neither the State department nor President Eisenhower devoted much thought to the offer made Rhee of a defensive alliance if he would call back the released captives and be a good boy. This lack of thought is underscored by the new demands by Rhee—namely that he be given formally the mutual security-defense pact to prevent him from "going it alone" and turning his ROK troops against those of the UN.

Without any intent to carp, but merely to illustrate how we have fallen into a rather obvious trap, we can take up the problem by the familiar 1-2-3 method.

1—It is impossible to consider that a unified Korea would be able to accept a military alliance with the United States.

2—The Communists in the North would never agree to accept the American-Korean military alliance if, by some feat of magic, a unified Korea were obtained. Therefore, Rhee's concept of a unified Korea is one attained by a military conquest of the North and the elimination of all the leaders there.

The United States would then be called upon, through terms of the proposed alliance, to protect that "unity" against the Chinese and Russians should they move against it.

3—If a truce is had in Korea, despite Rhee's greedy machinations, it is to be followed by a political conference looking toward a peace to replace the armistice. Are there any so naive as to suggest that at this conference the Chinese would agree to allow the North to unite with the South if there was any prospect of the country then becoming an American ally or "satellite"?

Acting on advice of the State department, President Eisenhower has set out to mix diplomatic oil and water. They won't mix any more than the tangible stuff of the old axiom. He has promised the Korean nationalists eventual unification; he seeks to end the shooting, and he promises security to Rhee and his government.

Never in Dean Acheson's worst days did he tie himself and the country in such a knot.

Across the waters, as they say, Winston Churchill said: "Korea has to remain divided—at least for the time being."

And so it does.

Atlanta Mail Service Needed Improvement

That Atlanta has been selected as one of 28 cities to get improved mail service is tacit admission that the service has been needing attention. In our minds, there has been no doubt. There have been many complaints on delivery of mail posted in the Atlanta area to addressees within the area.

The betterment plan includes keeping post office windows open later in the evening and for collections from letter boxes up to 11 p. m. The changes will be accomplished by staggering shifts of postal workers.

Any change for the better will be appreciated.

Those who use the service can help, too. We public tend to be a thoughtless lot. If we arrange for mailings at more frequent intervals during the day instead of letting the "outgoing" basket fill up by nightfall, we will be helping the postman with his load and contributing to the efficiency of the service.

Starvation of Race Is Not Inevitable

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization reports that the world's food production has increased 7 per cent in the past three years compared to a population growth of 1.4 per cent annually. That, of course, disputes the argument that the world's population is increasing more rapidly than its food supply and that we cannot hope to cope with the problem of eventual starvation unless the two are brought into line.

As science continues to discover ways and means of increasing food supplies, recovering arid lands and making better use of land and water resources, solution of the world's food problem seems not the insurmountable barrier we once believed.

The major hurdles to relieving the world's hunger are proper distribution and improving production techniques in overpopulated countries where feudal methods are still in use. The former can be corrected by improving world trade and the latter by such methods as the United States Point Four program. Much good is being accomplished by the UN agricultural agency, which is attacking the problem from both angles, too.

There is hope that eventually the world's food problem may be solved and with it will come solutions to many of the social and economic ills that invite war, disease, and poverty.

U. S. Attorney Dorsey Has the Right Spirit

For the first time since 1934, the Northern District of Georgia has a Republican U. S. attorney. He is James W. Dorsey, son of a Democratic governor of Georgia, the late Hugh Dorsey. He is a representative of the energetic generation of new young Republicans who are sincerely interested in building a two-party system in the state.

We liked the way Mr. Dorsey accepted his duties. He told the court: "I hope I discharge the duties of my office with as much credit to my party and administration as my predecessor reflected on his party and administration." We liked Judge Sibley's advice, too, in which he told Mr. Dorsey to be afraid of nothing but "to do wrong."

The new attorney shows the good sportsmanship and determination to do a job well that will give the GOP movement in Georgia a firm foundation on which to build its strength. We congratulate Mr. Dorsey and wish him well as we do all men of like caliber who are sincerely seeking to establish a genuine two-party system in this state.

Speaking of Diapers, How About a Change?

Last week, the House of Representatives ways and means committee lent what seems to have been a cool ear to a proposal that the cost of sanitary diapers be deductible for income tax purposes on the grounds that diaper service is a medical expense.

This week, the same House voted its members, by an off-the-record count, the right to deduct from federal income tax returns all the expenses of living in Washington. An internal revenue official said this would mean everything—rent, food, baby sitters, dry cleaning and laundry, including, we assume, diaper service.

If the Senate concurs and the Congress goes ahead to give itself a blanket deduction, yet fails to extend like coverage outside the seat of government, then we say it is indeed time for a change in Washington.

The Farmer Must Be An Electrician, Too

Two professors from the University of Georgia School of Agriculture have started on a swing around the state teaching high school agriculture instructors in a series of short courses.

The subjects won't be crop management and animal husbandry. The course will be in rural electrification and tractor maintenance.

No longer can the farmer get by merely as a sower of seeds and a chopper of cotton. To succeed these days, he must be an engineer. Farming is a sight more complicated than in the days of the cradle and the scythe. Today he must know how to run a 110-volt line and grind a set of valves.

This Novel Plan Has Many Connotations

We note, with no amazement whatever, that a local of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers has just negotiated with a Hillside, N. J., firm a contract calling for a holiday with pay for each employee on his birthday, and also on each anniversary of his starting work with the company.

It's at least a novel plan. The union leaders missed, however, what we consider a clearly indicated opportunity: What about wedding anniversaries, the opening game in the town's ball park, the annual occurrence of the date when a first child cut its first tooth and the often-celebrated time of departure of a visiting mother-in-law? This thing's got possibilities that could be exploited. And doubtless will.

Allies May Regret Treatment of Rhee

WASHINGTON — The governments of Great Britain, France and the United States may regret some day their cavalier treatment of the government of the Republic of Korea and especially the accusation that the latter has been guilty of "treachery" to the United Nations' command.

History will recount that the treatment of this small nation by the major powers was replete with incidents that may well raise the question of whether the "treachery" of the UN didn't come first and provoke the action of President Rhee in releasing the anti-Communist prisoners.

For, if the record of "treachery" is to be opened up to impartial review, it may come to mean that any independent action by a sovereign government out of harmony with its allies is a breach of faith if it occurs during a war in which presumably there had been a common cause.

Thus was it or was it not "treachery" for the British government to send rubber to Soviet Russia during the Korean War.

Was it "treachery" for the Allies to put pressure on the American government to reverse the recommendation of its Joint Chiefs of Staff that enemy airplanes be pursued to their bases when they were attacking United Nations forces?

Was it "treachery" when, after the Korean War began, the British government carried on diplomatic relations with Red China.

Wasn't it "treachery" when the Soviet government admitted during a United Nations debate that it had been supplying arms and ammunition to Red China and the North Korean Communist armies?

Wasn't it "treachery" when the United Nations, having misled the Republic of Korea into making enormous sacrifices based on the UN resolution of Oct. 7, 1950, abandoned that pledge of unification and gave it an altogether different interpretation in order to make a quick truce with the enemy?

Was it "treachery" when the United Nations refused to permit the South Korean government to sit as an equal at the Panmunjom negotiating table and actually excluded that government's topmost executive from participating in the negotiations as a principal?

The record of the Korean government, in making plain its attitude on the prisoner question, had been clear for a long time before the release of the anti-Communist prisoners was ordered. The Allied governments blundered in minimizing the Korean position and in acting now as if coercion could be applied at any moment to squelch it. This may result in a tragic loss of all that was achieved in three years of war. Indeed, it seems strange that Sir Winston Churchill, the British Prime Minister, should be telling the House of Commons that more British troops may now have to be sent to Korea to enforce the orders of the UN.

Words like "treachery" and "coercion" are being loosely used nowadays, but they will not sit well with the Korean people, who are going to be asked to hold the line against the aggressors if American boys are ever to be brought home from Korea.

Taft's Illness Is Critical for GOP

WASHINGTON — Republican colleagues of Senate majority leader Taft privately are beginning to show genuine concern over his condition. The concern is not only personal but is tinged with heavy political implications, involving the possibility of an upset in the present organization control of the Senate, now held by the Republicans by the bare margin of a single vote.

No final diagnosis of the Taft ailment has been forthcoming, although he has had the benefit of the best specialists in the medical corps of the armed services, as well as private practitioners in Cincinnati and New York.

His condition has been variously described as a chipped hip bone, deterioration of the thigh bone and hipbone joints, plus anemia. Taft himself has said he has no recollection of a fall or collision that might have caused the injury. He now uses crutches in the few appearances he makes on the Senate floor.

What is alarming to Taft's friends and colleagues is the striking change that has taken place in the senator's exterior since he first visited a government hospital here a short time back. He has lost 15 to 20 pounds—some put the figure at 25—since then.

The possibility of Taft's prolonged incapacitation is far more significant in view of the one-man control the Republicans have in the Senate and the fact that Ohio, the senator's home state, has a Democratic governor in Frank J. Lausche.

If Taft were no longer able to continue as senator, the way would be open for Lausche to name a Democrat as his successor. Such a development would be certain, it is believed, to recast organization control of the Senate. The present division is 47 Democrats to 48 Republicans, with one Independent, Senator Morse.

If the Republicans lost one of their present seats the only way they could muster a majority to hold their committee chairmanships would be for Morse to vote with them, thus forcing a tie which would enable Vice-President Nixon, the presiding officer of the Senate, to cast the deciding ballot.

But chances are the Oregon senator would never do this in the light of the treatment accorded him at the beginning of the session, when Republicans kicked him off his old committee posts because he refused to support Eisenhower in the election campaign.

Estimates of Summer Traffic Deaths May Require Revision for Increase

Car with 1951 license nonchalantly driving by State Patrol Headquarters; bus passing car on curve and hill with another bus coming opposite way; large trailer truck looming up in rear view mirror when speedometer reads 60 m. p. h. on downhill run. (Has 55-m. p. h. limit been done away with?)

State Highway department truck parked on edge of highway with driver leaning into cab door wide open on highway side; county truck loaded with gravel, forcing small car nearly off road as truck passes on hill; slow car holding up long line of Sunday traffic on through highway.

Evidently these drivers don't read The Constitution safety articles. With the curve and hill-passers out in full force, the Safety Council should be able to up its estimates of traffic deaths during summer vacation time. WALTER GRANT.

U. S. Leadership Called Still A 'Rose by Any Other Name'

Atlanta—What do you think now of the leadership in Washington? It's the same kind of leadership we had at the conference tables at Yalta and Potsdam. Only now, for some strange reason, it's called "Republican," though I am sure the millions who voted for a complete change last November would say this is the "rose by any other name." M. L. IRSAY.

He's Glad He Won't Have To Dodge Trolleys Any More

Atlanta—I see by The Constitution that Atlanta police are going to crack down on illegal turns and traffic violations of that sort. I'm glad to be one of the first to congratulate them on this great stride in better traffic conditions.

Now I know in any driving I have to do in my business and pleasure around town, I won't have to dodge busses and trolleys making left-hand turns from right-hand lanes. EMMERSON JAMES.

It Required a Simple Minded Man To Change Strangers Into Friends

TATE MOUNTAIN—For 30 miles we rode the bus together, each person wrapped in his own thick cloak of silent apathy. People dozed, or read, or stared with blank eyes out the window, and no man spoke to his neighbor. We were 40 strangers living withdrawn in the 40 separate worlds of our own thoughts.

Then the bus stopped at a dusty little town and a new passenger got on. He was neither short nor tall, nor young nor old, nor well nor poorly dressed. He stood in the door of the bus and uttered a high, strange gobbling laugh, showing many teeth.

"My name's Bob," he said to the bus at large. "I been to a pitcher show. I had a good time. I been having a good time all day."

His eye roved up and down the bus, and the people, staring at him, shifted their gaze out the window, trying not to meet his eye, not wanting to be singled out. Embarrassment hung like a fog in the bus. But he wasn't embarrassed. He walked back through the bus to the center, and sat down in a seat on the aisle. He craned his neck to look around him. The people would not look at him, except with wary glances out of the side of their eyes. They thought he was drunk. But he wasn't. His eyes were clear, but with a strange dancing light in them, a glint of constant laughter, as if all he saw was a joy to behold.

He leaned back in his seat and laughed again his strange high gobbling laugh. He did not seem to notice that the man beside him was pretending to be asleep, the woman across the aisle was staring fixedly at nothing out the window, the people in the seats in front were slumping down trying not to be noticed. Then he saw the two little girls, peering at him over the back of their seat up the aisle toward the driver. He laughed his queer laugh and lifted his hands and waved at them, wiggling his fingers.

The little girls ducked out of sight behind the seat, and the sound of their shrill giggling filled the bus. Then the two heads popped up again. Their eyes were big and wondering for a moment. Then again they broke into hysterical tittering and ducked out of sight. The man fumbled in his pocket and brought out a fresh package of chewing gum. He held it up toward the seat where the little girls were hiding. A thin hand came out and took the gum, and in a moment the heads appeared again, jaws working rhythmically.

They talked to him then. They told him their names. He said they were pretty names. They told him where they had been. He told them he bet it was a pretty place. They told him where they were going. He told them he bet that was a nice place, too. And he told everybody his name again and that he had been to the picture show and had a good time.

He rode only a few miles. At another dusty little town he got off. He stopped in the door and told everybody he had enjoyed being with them on the bus. He said he hoped everybody got home all right, and that they had a good time when they got there. His name was Bob, he said, and he had been to the picture show and had a good time. He laughed again that high wild laugh.

The bus pulled out on the highway again. But the atmosphere was changed. People talked to each other, chatting casually and easily from aisle to aisle and seat to seat. They weren't talking about the queer man with the dancing eyes and the queer gobbling laugh. They had forgotten him. But he had subtly changed them all. Merely by being a little fey—too simple of mind to wear the shell in which sane men encase themselves, he had broken through the barriers of reserve that keep men strangers, had unlocked the gates of friendliness, had released the warmth and sympathy that lie buried deeply within us all.

Back Seat Was Somewhat Noisy

We had a fine week at beautiful Lake Junaluska, except for one problem. I will gladly give the sum of $1 to the one sending the best answer on this subject: "How to Maintain Order Between Two Children on the Back Seat of the Car." Our two little ones are ages 8 and 9 and they acted exactly like children the entire trip.

We drove up through the great Smoky Mountains of Tennessee and back by Highlands. I would begin to meditate with the Psalmist, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help," when from the back seat would come a scream, "Make him quit choking me." And I would shout, "Quit choking her." "Well," he would say, "make her give me back my knife."

There would be those prolonged periods of giggling and then they would scuffle. Then I would hear, "Make him move over and give me half the seat." And Mama would be admonishing, "Stop sticking your feet out the window." "I'm thirsty" was wailed every 30 minutes. I do not understand how they can drink so much water.

I tried buying comic books but after about 10 minutes with their new ones, the racket would start up again. "Read your books," I would shout. "We have read them." "Well, read them again." "We'll have to get some more at the next town." Neither threats of dire punishment nor promises of great reward helped a bit.

The nearest a solution we came was for Mama to sit in the back with one and put the other one in front with me. But Mama and I like to talk and enjoy the scenery together. On second thought, I will raise the prize to $2 for the best solution.

What they wanted most to do at the lake was row a canoe. At first I thought I had that problem solved. Since they both wanted to row, I got some cushions and comfortably fixed myself in the middle. Thus they could row until their hearts were content, and, being seated on opposite ends of the canoe, could not be hitting each other.

But when children are involved, no problem is permanently solved. Before much rowing, they would decide to change places. Canoes are easy to tip over and it was a precarious and nerve-racking experience, especially after about the 10th changing.

One good thing about the trip is they would eat without urging and go to sleep early. However, even there I had problems. Scarcely would we be through with a meal until they would be insisting on nickels to spend in the little soda shop.

And, going to sleep early meant that just at the crack of dawn they would be bouncing into my bed ready to get dressed and go outside. I wondered why they were never so wide awake on school mornings. I asked Mama if they are worth the trouble they cause. She assured me they are.

A-Bomb Takes Turn at Bat?

In belfries there may be just as many bats as usual, but not in caves. A batologist told the American Society of Mammalogists the other day that the count is down on bats wintering underground east of the Rockies. He didn't know how much or exactly why, but there is a tendency to blame it on the atomic bomb. For one thing, say the experts on nature's underworld, the bankers are crowding the bats out. Not that the bankers are in hiding, but they are taking over the caves to store valuable papers as a protection against air raids. And who wants a winged mammal flying blind in a safety vault?

They say, too, that a bat is 300 times as resistant to radioactivity as a rat and they hint the Atomic Energy Commission may be using bats for guinea pigs as science seeks a way to protect man vs. atomic radiation. They allege the practice is unfair to bats.

However, there are others—shall I say not quite so batminded (the Atlanta Crackers, for instance? asks Jake Harris)—who think the warmer weather of the last few winters has allowed many bats to survive without resorting to caves.

It's human nature to look for a scapegoat when things go wrong. Nowadays we find the rascal easily in the atomic blasts. If your wife's getting fat, it's the A-bomb. If your car has a flat, it's the A-bomb. Of course, the greatest crime laid of late at the bomb's doorstep is the wave of tornadoes. It's much better to lay blame at the bomb's doorstep than to have the bomb laid at yours.

The nation's head weatherman, Francis W. Reichelderfer—the name is no zephyr—says it ain't so. It's true that this year the nation has had over 200 tornadoes. But in 1928 we had 203 tornadoes, in 1933 we had 260 and in 1938, 220. And, up to that time, the biggest explosions had been TNT and the Republican reaction to the New Deal.

Weatherman Reichelderfer had his say in an exclusive interview with the U. S. News & World Report under the title "What's Wrong With the Weather?"

The answer in Georgia right now is easy—nothing that a cool breeze wouldn't cure.

Hartsfield Surveys Needs For Possible Bond Voting

$5 Million Is Sought for Water Expansion; School Needs Cited

By MARJORY SMITH

Mayor Hartsfield disclosed Tuesday he has launched "a quiet survey" to determine "Atlanta's basic urgent needs in the event we should consider a reasonable bond issue this fall."

The announcement came as Atlanta waterworks officials made public a planned expansion program and said they would seek at least $5,000,000 of any new city bond issue for waterworks improvements.

Earlier the Atlanta Board of Education had indicated it may propose a $13,000,000 bond issue to finance building of new city schools.

Hartsfield said Tuesday he has asked Clarke Donaldson, city construction chief, to outline urgent sewer and drainage requirements here.

"Water, sewers, and drainage are a growing city's basic needs," the mayor declared. "Without them we can't build schools or do anything else. Planning for Atlanta's orderly growth is vital, and in any consideration of a bond issue we must make sure that one city department does not outstrip another."

TO CONSIDER REQUEST

Hartsfield said the tentative request of the water department "would be taken under advisement." The Atlanta Board of Education is expected to present its own bond issue request following a special meeting scheduled for Thursday night.

Councilman James E. Jackson, city water committee chairman, and Paul Weir, manager of the city waterworks, revealed Tuesday they will seek bond funds to cover major share of a $6,323,000 waterworks expansion program now in early planning stages.

SAYS EXPANSION VITAL

The expansion program, which Jackson said was necessary to meet rapidly growing demands for water in northern and southwestern city areas, would increase Atlanta's water supply 20 per cent in the next three years.

Other city departments are expected to make their own demands for a share in any bond issue Atlanta may float in the future, but no other department spokesmen were ready to express them here Tuesday.

The city's current bonding capacity is roughly $20,000,000, and observers pointed out that if sufficient other demands were added, requests now under discussion might have to be "scaled down."

NEW PURIFYING PLANT

Jackson and Weir said the waterworks expansion program would include a $3,473,000 new water purification plant at the Chattahoochee River which would add a 20,000,000 gallons-per-day capacity to the existing purification facilities.

Under future plans, two 36-inch trunk line water mains would be extended from the new plant to carry pure water directly to Buckhead and Adamsville, at an estimated cost of $2,100,000.

Elevated and underground water storage tanks and booster pumping stations, costing about $750,000, would be located at terminal points of the new mains to ensure adequate water pressure.

Weir said capacity of the existing water purification plant on Howell Mill Road "may soon be overtaxed." Jackson pointed out that the Fulton County industrial area now being developed on the Chattahoochee River near the Fulton County Airport would add to the growing demand for water in that area.

EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE — ST. LOUIS, June 23—Kenneth B. Jackson, 49-year-old St. Louis bank teller, has admitted taking $91,000 by making false entries on accounts over a 20-year period, the FBI said. Jackson said he used the money for "normal living expenses" for his wife and two children, the FBI reported.

State Asked For Road in Fulton Tract

The Fulton County commission voted Tuesday to ask the state to build a three-mile road leading into the county's 2,500-acre industrial tract on the Chattahoochee River between Gordon and Campbellton Roads.

And the commission authorized immediate advertisement for bids from private contractors for grading parts of the tract. Bids will be received and compared for economy with estimates of what it would cost to county to do the job with its own forces.

At a joint meeting with members of the Fulton Industrial Authority, Commissioner R. L. Doyal said he had been unable personally to get a commitment from the state highway department for construction of the three-mile highway. Doyal said state officials indicated governmental economy cut might knock out the project, which entails relocation of part of Highway 74.

State Sen. Everett Millican, who is a member of the industrial authority, said that even if the state cannot build the road it might at least furnish materials for construction.

The industrial development has been in the planning stage for 10 years.

Harllee Branch and Mills B. Lane, industrial authority members, said the county might save $300,000 if it graded only a small area to be used as a "display" for prospective industries. They said interested industries might then be willing to do their own grading.

Representatives of the Southern Railway System and Atlantic Coast Line railroad, which will serve the project, said they expect little trouble in obtaining approval from the Interstate Commerce Commission for spur lines, but said they would appreciate any help the commission could give in speeding ICC action.

Secretary Fortson Seeks Re-election

Secretary of State Ben W. Fortson Jr., announced Tuesday that he will be a candidate for re-election to his present post in 1954.

Secretary Fortson, who removed himself as a potential gubernatoral candidate in Columbus last week, said he made his announcement a year ahead of time in order to end speculation concerning his plans.

Lon Duckworth, former chairman of the State Democratic Party who also had been mentioned as a potential candidate, announced Sunday that he is not interested in seeking the governorship.

Alpharetta Store Entered; Loot $120

The Reese Soda Co. in Alpharetta was broken into and $120 in small bills and change taken early Tuesday, detectives said.

J. W. Reese, owner, told Detectives L. W. Cook and L. S. West he discovered the loss after opening his store. Reese said the money was hidden in several places in the store and that nothing else was disturbed.

New Cooling System Tested At Auditorium

The Atlanta Municipal Auditorium's giant new air-conditioning system was turned on for the first time in a "wildcat test run" Tuesday.

Auditorium Manager H. H. Niebreugge said completion of the $174,000 air-conditioning job is still several weeks away, but "installation was far enough along to provide comfort for the Shrine ceremonial at the auditorium."

A remote control panel in Niebreugge's office controls the entire system, supplying conditioned air to the main area and to smaller exhibitors and meeting rooms. A centrifugal refrigerating machine is used, similar to those in use at national political conventions in Chicago last summer.

Mayor Hartsfield, the city building inspector, Niebreugge, and others must approve the "test run" results and other testing before the system will be pronounced finished, the auditorium manager said.

Trusty Killed In Camp Mishap

James Daniel, 35, a Negro trusty prisoner, was fatally injured Monday at the garage of the Coweta County public works camp, State Department of Corrections officials disclosed.

Asst. Director of Corections J. B. Hatchett said witnesses testified at a coroner's inquest that Daniel suffered fatal head injuries while pumping up a huge tire on an earth-moving tractor. The tire or a rim lock on the wheel exploded under pressure of the air pump, causing the injury. Daniel was serving a 20-month sentence for larceny from Fulton County.

GOP Leader Defends Accused State Pair

Two South Georgia Republican leaders who have been indicted on charges of trafficking in government jobs never accepted money from anyone and are victims of a racial fight in the opinion of the secretary of the Republican State Central Committee.

In a statement Tuesday, W. Barnaby Hill said the squabble over reorganization stemmed from a malicious race fight which is "unfortunately receiving the support of certain persons in the Republican Party in Georgia who have personal political ambitions."

The accused officials, Tom C. Williams, wealthy Negro mortician at Waycross and Republican Eighth District chairman, and James M. Kent of St. Simons Island, vice-chairman, were indicted with four others on federal job selling charges.

Hill further stated that insofar as the office of secretary is concerned, any attempt to reorganize the Eighth District is not legal.

"The actions of the regular called county and district conventions in the Eighth District will stand, and no pressure, political or otherwise, will change it," he said.

Hill's statement came after the Eighth District Republican Club called for the removal of Williams and asked the State Republican Committee to appoint Willis Milner of St. Simons Island as temporary chairman.

Kent, a business executive and offering to resign if other under indictment would quit too.

Kent, a business executice and civic leader, issued a statement saying he had been instrumental in the Eighth District trying to "clean up this mess, and some of my political opponents are attempting to pin on me the same charges with which they are charged."

Williams said he asked Kent to resign as vice-chairman "because he was not cooperating with the regular district organizations."

Hill said the present organizational setup in the Eighth District has been recognized by the state Republican convention and the national Republican convention.

METHODISTS DISCUSS CONFERENCE REPORTS
Walter L. Richard, North Georgia Conference Lay Leader and Mrs. Stewart Colley, President, North Georgia WSCS

Completion Due on Ships Halted in '46

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP)—Adm. William N. Fechteler told Congress, in testimony released today, that the Navy plans eventually to complete a battleship and a battle cruiser on which work was stopped in 1946.

The chief of naval operations said this is part of a plan to prevent the "aging" fleet from becoming obsolete while operating under a "boildown" budget.

He also told a House appropriations subcommittee the Navy will have three new 60,000 ton aircraft carriers by the end of 1956 if Congress approves the third this year. Two are under construction.

The Navy is asking Congress for $875,168,000 to finance construction of ships during the year beginning July 1. Fechteler said this is a "boildown" from a two billion dollar annual expenditure which he said is necessary to keep the 1,134 ship fleet from obsolescence.

The shipbuilding program for next year, Fechteler said, calls for the construction of 10 combat vessels, nine auxiliaries and 150 small landing craft. In addition, one aircraft carrier and six other vessels will be converted to newer warcraft.

$740 FOR RECREATION TO $1 FOR RELIGION

Push Education, Methodists Told

By LAURA BARRE

Bishop Fred P. Corson, president of the Methodist general board of education, told the anniversary meeting of the North Georgia Conference board of education Tuesday night that the U. S. spends $740 per capita each year for recreation to $1 per capita for religious education.

He added that "to restore moral sanity and ethical relationships in the world, we must make Christian education more effective" by:

1. Broadening the base of operation to include all classes of people in all parts of the world;

2. Deepening the content of Christian education in the realization that Christian action is an experience expressed through the human personality;

3. Increasing the interest in Christian education, which depends upon the voluntary action of man.

Bishop Corson also consecrated two women as directors of religious education in the North Georgia Conference. They are Miss Jean Buchanan of Atlanta, and Mrs. William Swygert of Carrolton.

The Rev. E. H. Blackburn reported to the annual conference meeting at Wesley Memorial Church that Methodists in the North Georgia Conference gave a total of more than $6,000,000 for church work last year, an increase of $840,000 over the year before.

Earlier Tuesday Bishop Arthur J. Moore, bishop of the church in Atlanta and Central Europe, had announced that when his present four-year term is up he will request another assignment.

Bishop Moore said that since his election to the Episcopacy nearly a quarter of a century ago he had carried responsibilities far beyond the strength and wisdom of any one man. He said he "looks forward to the time when the load will be not quite so heavy."

The conference voted Tuesday to support a constitutional amendment which would allow missionary bishops in foreign countries to vote on all matters coming before the Council of Bishops instead of only on those affecting their territories, as they do at present.

Church membership in the conference has increased 3,330 over last year, it was reported. Per capita giving amounted to $28.94 during the past year.

Mrs. Stewart Colley, Grantville, president of the Women's Society of Christian Service, reported a gain of 6,000 members during the year. The society gave a total of $193,858 for mission work at home and abroad last year, she added.

Walter Richard, conference lay leader, reported that 24 Men's Clubs were organized during the year, bringing the total to 114.

Board of Conference Claimants—J. C. Stiles, Athens; Judge J. Wilson Parker; the Rev. E. M. Wise, Brookhaven; Benjamin H. Smith, Atlanta; the Rev. Harry Lee Wood, Canton; the Rev. E. A. Puckett, Atlanta and J. R. Phillips, Warm Springs.

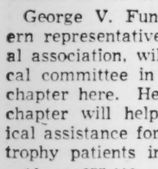
CAPITOL NOTEBOOK

Savannah Uses Cruise for Study

By M. L. ST. JOHN

One of the more enjoyable means of teaching a practical subject to school children is found in Savannah. There, under a new project sponsored by the Chatham Board of Education, the children take sightseeing cruises on the Savannah River.



The other day we made this three-hour trip with a group of retired school teachers, whom the ship operators and school board were honoring. The guide, who chatted into loud speakers worlds of information about the new industries along the river bank, noted that the teachers weren't as enthusiastic as the children.

By this, he meant the teachers didn't squeal loudly about the wonders being noted, or play the juke box aboard the boat, or have to be restrained from crowding to one side when the boat was about to dock. The teachers simply didn't show their enthusiasm—they felt it, all right.

It was an interesting cruise, an eye-opener to Georgians unaware of the new developments at this port. Here the annual payroll of 18 waterfront plants is $60,000,000. The plants employ 18,000 workers. As one out-of-state visitor wrote, a person walking along Bay Street would have no idea of all the activity going on on the riverside.

Commander Frank Spencer, boat-line operator and member of the board of education who originated the "port education project," said the harbor inspection trip is designed to increase interest on the part of all Savannahans on commerce at the port.

Since the project was begun April 1, more than 10,000 children, teachers, and parents have made the excursion trips. Commander Spencer said he hopes to have the harbor study made a permanent course in Savannah's public schools.

Schools throughout the state have as permanent projects the inspection of industrial plants and newspaper plants to show the studens the inner workings of such factories and productions. Sailing on a river, gazing at plants loading materials on seagoing vessels, and listening to a loudspeaker explain the happenings "on the starboard side" is a mose appealing way to absorb knowledge, though.

Speaking of fun, employees at the State Capitol are rather downhearted right now. They fear they are going to miss their third holiday of the year. State law sets Robert E. Lee's birthday, Jan. 19, as a holiday. It also sets George Washington's birthday, Feb. 22, as a legal holiday. Since the Legislature was in session though, Governor Talmadge did not figure the employees could be spared from the offices on these days. So they worked. The Fourth of July is a legal holiday. It falls on Saturday this year. Although the capitol is not officially closed on Saturday, actually only a skeleton staff is present each Saturday — most workers are on a five-day week. So, unless an extra day is added by common consent, some of the state workers may miss their third holiday of the year.

Dystrophy Group Slates Elections

A Fulton and DeKalb chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of America will be organized at 3 p. m. Friday in the directors' room of the First National Bank, Henry Brown, temporary president of the Atlanta committee of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, announced.

Officers of the chapter and an executive committee will be elected at the meeting.

George V. Funderbirk, Southern representative of the national association, will assist the local committee in organizing the chapter here. He said the local chapter will help provide medical assistance for muscular dystrophy patients in this area.

About $55,000 was pledged by telephone for research and treatment in the field of muscular dystrophy during the recent telethon at the Tower Theater. Of that amount, $39,000 has been collected. Pledges may be sent to P. O. Box 4334, Atlanta 2, Georgia.

J. F. Milhous Named Bond Sales Leader

James F. Milhous, vice-president and investment officer of the First National Bank in Atlanta, was appointed county chairman for the sale of U. S. Defense Bonds in Fulton County Tuesday.

James F. Milhous

His appointment was announced by acting state volunteer chairman Freeman Strickland, also a vice-president of the First National Bank, in the absence of Jackson P. Dick, state chairman.

Fulton County sales of U. S. Defense Bonds have always been a major portion of the total sales for the state. The Fulton County goal for 1953 is $19,925,000, a little more than one-third of the goal for the entire state. Bond sales to date in Fulton County amount to $8,160,622. This figure is 41 per cent of the 1953 goal.

Milhous succeeds William R. Bowdoin, vice-president of the Trust Company of Georgia, who has served as county chairman for the past two years.

Some 35 to 40 individuals and firms are currently using airplanes for crop dusting and spraying in Georgia, according to a recent Agricultural Extension Service study.

Physical Examinations for Cattle Urged

Cows and other cattle with suspected illnesses should be given physical examinations by veterinarians to detect diseases which might be transmitted to humans, Dr. A. M. Mills, professor of medicine and surgery at the University of Georgia School of Veterinary Medicine, said Tuesday.

Speaking at the 47th annual meeting of the Georgia Veterinary Medical Association, Dr. Mills said brucellosis (Bang's disease) and tuberculosis are the principal diseases of cattle which may be contracted by man.

He said a routine physical examination of a cow—requiring about 10 minutes—includes a check of the heart, the pulse and the temperature.

He said a complete physical examination would entail an X-ray, blood count, urinalysis and biopsy.

Dr. Mills said cows producing milk should be examined to be sure they are in good health and have no infectious diseases. He explained counties and municipalities regulate the examination of milk cows.

He pointed out that New York City requires examinations of udders of all milk-producing cows since udder infections can affect humans who drink the milk. He said he believed such examinations would be advisable in Georgia.

Dr. Mills said valuable cows frequently are given physical examinations for life insurance purposes.

He emphasized that owners of sick cows should consult a veterinarian at once because (1) chances of cure are better in the early stages of disease and (2) the owner may not be able to diagnose the illness and may treat the cow for the wrong disease.

Dr. Roland Clanton of Thomasville was installed as president of the association at the closing session of the convention at the Biltmore Hotel.

HOMICIDE DETECTIVES QUESTION YOUTH IN MURDER OF BETTY BAGBY

Peyton Road area about 11 p. m. Saturday.

These witnesses said Price and Miss Bagby were engaged in an argument, and, according to Cowan, Price's statement said they had been arguing over taking a bus instead of a taxi.

The Price statement said he did not have money for a taxi, Cowan reported.

Other witnesses saw the pair walking down Peyton Road, near the crime scene, according to police.

Price was wearing a baseball cap with the initials "R. R." on the visor when brought to police headquarters. He said the initials were for the Riverside Ramblers, a sandlot team on which he played.

FORMER PLAYER

His father, Bill Price, is a former baseball player, and once was on the roster of the Atlanta Crackers, detectives said.

Price's mother visited him at police headquarters late Tuesday afternoon. Following this visit, police said he requested that she be telephoned, to bring him "some real scary murder comics" and "some hot dogs."

In previous oral statements, according to police, Price told of taking Miss Bagby, who was lame with a club foot, to a tavern in downtown Atlanta where they looked for friends, and not finding them returned by bus to the Peyton Rd. area.

Price then said, according to detectives, that he came back to town by thumbing a ride in a car with two men wearing overalls, and that he next telephoned his father to meet him at the end of the bus stop as the Price home at 7 Brownsville Rd., N. W., is a mile from the bus stop.

Price appeared nonchalant at police headquarters, and in answer to a detective's question, was reported as saying he "slept fine" the night of the crime.

SERVICES TODAY

Miss Bagby lived at 9 Brownsville Rd., N. W.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Wednesday at the Second Baptist Church near Chattahoochee, with the Rev. Fred Johnson and the Rev. G. H. Lawson officiating. Burial will be in Riverview Memorial Park.

Miss Bagby is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter Bagby; four sisters, Mrs. G. H. Wright, Mrs. J. B. Bridges, Mrs. George W. Fowler and Mrs. Forrest Boorom and four brothers, Grady, Bertice, James and Hubert.

Price has not yet retained legal counsel, Supt. Cowan said. Dets. Mike Johnson, W. R. Browning and W. E. Petty and Lt. L. T. Bullard, who worked on the investigation, were praised by Cowan for their part in the investigation.

Police said Price quit school at the age of 16, and had been working intermittently since that time. They said he told them his last job, in April, was in a shoe store.

U. S. Brands Rhee's Price 'Unacceptable' for United Nations affairs has been approved by Congress.

South Korean government sources in Seoul said Rhee would be ready to confer with Robertson tonight in the event the American envoy, who is coming as President Eisenhower's special representative, wants to start discussing the situation as soon as he arrives.

Allied military units, meanwhile, prepared for a day of tension in Seoul tomorrow, the third anniversary of the Korean War. Rhee, it was reported, has scheduled a demonstration in which "every man, woman and child" in the capital will take part.

Rhee released in Seoul today the text of the letter in which he told Clark that South Korean troops would be withdrawn from the UN command if the "present armistice" is signed. He promised to let Clark know "as a friend to a friend when I have decided to withdraw our forces."

Meantime, Rhee said he does not believe the United Nations has much faith in the durability of a Korean truce, but is agreeing to it "just for the sake of a make-believe peace." His statement was in answer to written questions submitted to him by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Recalling that American GIs were told "if you do not fight in Korea you have to fight in your own backyards some day," Rhee asked if the proposed truce has "truly eliminated the danger of having to fight in your own backyard&"

Robertson and Rhee were expected to exchange their governments' "final" positions and then try to work out a compromise solution to the current impasse.

Meantime, North Korean anti-Communists dramatically freed by Rhee to emphasize his opposition to the proposed truce terms roamed all over South Korea. The South Koreans freed approximately 27,000 Red prisoners and then refused to help round them up.

A UN source in Tokyo said Robertson had authority to reach preliminary agreement with Rhee on a pact which would guarantee South Korea continued American military support during any armistice and if fighting resumed.

Pinay Refuses To Try Hand at Forming Regime

PARIS, June 23—(AP)—Former Premier Antoine Pinay refused tonight to try and form a new government and end the worst French government crisis since World War II.

At the same time, parliament approved a law to borrow 50,000,000,000 francs ($143,000,000) from the Bank of France to keep the treasury from running dry.

Pinay informed President Vincent Auriol of his decision after two of France's largest political parties announced they would not support him. The opposition of the popular Republican party and the former De Gaullists of the Uras party would have made it impossible for Pinay to win endorsement by the National Assembly. The Socialists and Communists already had come out against him.

At the headquarters of the cultural league the telephone exchange was smashed and 40 occupants of the building were injured. The newspaper said that party members were beaten and robbed, and claimed that the rioters in Holzmarkt Square sang the Nazi's Horst Wessel song.

According to a refugee, the strikers at the great Leuna Chemical Works near Merseburg gathered outside the plant and sang Deutschland Ueber Alles. Neues Deustchland confirmed a report that Willi Hagedorn, a factory guard at Rathenow, had been lynched when he tried to prevent the crowd from entering the plant. It said he was dragged around the streets after he had been killed.

The Communist newspaper also said the riot swept through "Peace Square" in Leipzig.

Four Berliners were given sentences from two to six years imprisonment for their alleged roles in Wednesday's disorders, according to the East-German news agency A. D. N. The heaviest sentence, six years, went to Wolfgang Gottschling of West Berlin, who was charged with making provocative speeches and urging others to attack Soviet and East German forces.

Chancellor Adenauer told a crowd estimated by the police at 125,000 that the West would renew its fight for Germany unity. "Eighteen million Germans behind the Iron Curtain appeal to us not to forget them," the chancellor said.

Visitor Near Soviet Isle Off Alaska Said Missing

NOME, Alaska, June 23—(AP)—The Nome Nugget reported today an American had disappeared on an excursion to Little Diomede Island and was believed to have gone to Russian-owned Big Diomede.

The islands are only three miles apart, with ice spanning the gap in Bering Strait. They are close to the middle of the 50-mile-wide waterway between the Alaskan and Siberian mainlands.

ON EXCURSION

The newspaper said the man, identified only as Stoner, was a passenger on an excursion boat to Little Diomede for taking pictures of the ice and walruses, and that he disappeared while the American Eskimo village he was visiting on Little Diomede was asleep.

There was no explanation of why the missing man might have crossed to the Russian island—if he did—or whether he might be there voluntarily or was being detained.

The Nugget reported Stoner also is known to authorities in Seattle, where he jumped bail two years ago and later was picked up in Nome.

RECORDS CHECK

(A check of records at Seattle showed that a Cecil Augustus Stoner, 45-year-old laborer, was picked up in Nome in March, 1951, after he had posted $1,000 bail in Seattle on a grand larceny charge involving building materials. He served close to a year in the state prison and was paroled in April, 1952. He was born in Highlandville, Mo.

(The police file on his case includes a memorandum by Sgt. C. A. Martenson that Stoner had a reputation for leftist sympathies. Another officer said he once was known for his soapbox speaking inclinations in Seattle.

(The warden of the Washington State Prison said Stoner is listed as a parole violator).

TWICE A DAY?

Congressmen Ponder Daily Mail Deliveries

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—Each year 50 billion pieces of mail are sent in this country. That's more than 300 letters, newspapers, ads, pamphlets, bills, magazines and parcels for every man, woman and child in the U. S.

And to hear some congressmen talk, people camp at their mail boxes eagerly awaiting the arrival of each piece.

Nothing seems to excite a congressman more than a discussion of this burning question: Should the postman ring twice? Or is once a day enough?

Some sample quotes:

Rep. Lane (D-Mass)—"The mail service has become the snail service. The public wants mail deliveries brought up to date by restoration of twice a day service."

Rep. Javits (R-NY)—"There is great dissatisfaction with this one a day mail delivery in New York."

On the other hand, Rep. Passman (D-La) said: "It has been over two years since I have received a complaint due to the limitation of residential deliveries to one a day."

Rep. Gary (D-Va) said 68 per cent of the people never have had more than one delivery a day. For complainers, he had this suggestion: "All a person has to do get more than one delivery a day is to put a special delivery stamp on the letter. That is what special delivery is for."

Postmaster General Summerfield has said he would like to restore two deliveries a day, which were cut out three years ago. But he said it would cost 80 million dollars, at a time he's trying to put the department on a paying basis.

I hesitate to rush in where so much advice already has been given, but I have an idea that may work.

Let's meet the postman part way. Let's put our mail boxes at some convenient corner, as they do in rural areas. After we do a part of the walking, I suspect our desire for two deliveries a day will dwindle.

It certainly has dwindled at our place.

We moved to yonder suburbs last fall, with the mail box a full 300 feet away. After a few trudging trips for the mail in the rain you begin to wonder how many of those 50 billion pieces are worth walking for.

Sure, I get mail I want and want fast. But the bulk of it makes me think I'm on the all-American sucker list, considered an easy mark for every advertising arrow.

Don't bother about the two a day delivery for me, Summerfield. I'm getting more mail than I really need already.

Citizen Truman Has 'Time of Life' On Pleasure Trip to Washington

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP) — Harry S. Truman said today he is having "the time of my life" strolling around Washington as a private citizen and swapping reminiscences with friends he knew when he lived in the White House.

He seemed particularly pleased at the absence of U. S. Secret Service men who formerly guarded him wherever he went for nearly eight years in the presidency.

The grinning, sun-tanned former President highlighted a busy holiday with a two-mile before-breakfast stroll around downtown Washington. He exchanged greetings with cab drivers, passing motorists and pedestrians.

He didn't go near the big executive mansion on Pennsylvania Avenue as he explained to newsmen yesterday: "I'd much rather be on the outside looking in than on the inside looking out."

Truman had Senate Minority Leader Lyndon Johnson, House Minority Leader Sam Rayburn and House Minority Whip John McCormack in to his hotel suite on the sixth floor of the Hotel Mayflower for a ham and eggs breakfast and a lot of off-the-record political and social conversation.

"It was like meeting with the 'Big Four' at the White House," the ex-President observed, "except Alben Barkley couldn't be here." The former vice president was out of town.

Dean Acheson dropped by with Averell Harriman for a long talk just as they used to drop by the White House when Acheson was secretary of state and Harriman was director of mutual security.

There wasn't any official report on any of the conversations, but callers said they were "happy to have the boss back in town" and to "see him looking so well."

Truman's old White House staff, including Charles S. Murphy, former special counsel to the President, John R. Steelman, who served as assistant to the President, and Matthew J. Connelly, Truman's top White House secretary, attended a luncheon with him at the hotel.

The staffers returned with former members of the Cabinet for a big dinner that rounded out another day of the 69-year-old Truman's first visit to Washington since he turned over the White House to President Eisenhower last Jan. 20.

"I'm having the time of my life" he confided to reporters. But, he continued to maintain silence on his view of the Eisenhower administration.

Death of Nehru Opponent Sets Off Street Fights

Foes Charge Negligence As Leader Dies While Prisoner

NEW DELHI, India, June 23—(AP)—The death of the powerful opposition leader, Dr. Syama Prasad Mookerjee, while a political prisoner, touched off street fighting and a massive funeral demonstration here today. Government leaders feared Mookerjee's Hindu extremists might resort to greater violence.

Mookerjee, 52, leader of the Jan Sangh (People's) party and fiery opponent of Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, died in Srinagar, capital of Kashmir, where he was imprisoned five weeks ago for defying a ban on his entering the state.

The government attributed Mookerjee's death to a heart attack following pleurisy. It said he had been moved from prison to a nursing home when he became ill.

In New Delhi a spokesman for the Jan Sangh party asserted that "Prime Minister Nehru and Shiek Abdullah (Premier of Kashmir) might well be guilty of serious negligence in this tragedy and if the facts bear this out, they will be sorry and will have to suffer the consequences."

News of Mookerjee's death brought 1,000 demonstrators into the streets of the old section of the city. Police officials said constables charged the mob with clubs and arrested 20 demonstrators after four policemen were injured.

Later 10,000 Mookerjee followers assembled and marched to the shores of the sacred Jumna River and held a religious ceremony in honor of the departed spirit. Reports from Srinagar said the leader's body was being flown to Calcutta, his birthplace, for funeral rites.

Krishna Kriplani, secretary to Education Minister Maulana Abul Azad, who heads the Cabinet in Nehru's absence abroad, said the government was "somewhat concerned because people are naturally bound to get excited over an event of this sort."

Mookerjee was the only opposition leader able to match Nehru's strong personality. He had even been viewed by some observers as a future government head in the event of the Prime Minister's death.

Mother Forgives Son Who Lost Her Savings on Derby

With a forgiveness as deep as her 71 years of age, Mrs. Lillian Way refused to press a complaint that he had made off with her $13,000 life savings to bet on the Kentucky Derby.

In court today the trembling widow declared:

"I haven't long to live. I hope God will forgive my sins and I want to forgive my son's."

A grand larceny indictment against Way, 43, himself the father of three, was dismissed.

Said the weeping, penitent son:

"I'll sign my house over to my mother and give her everything I've got. She can live with me for the rest of her life."

Astin Tags AD-X2 as Worthless

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP)—Dr. Allen V. Astin testified today the National Bureau of Standards is convinced on the basis of "cold hard scientific fact" that the controversial AD-X2 powder does nothing to improve the performance of storage batteries.

Astin said, however, the bureau has been wrong on some things in the past and expects to make mistakes in the future. He promised the bureau will make a further study of AD-X2 if any "pertinent" new data turns up.

OUSTED, THEN REINSTATED

The tall, tanned scientist was ousted by Secretary of Commerce Weeks as head of the bureau early in the Eisenhower administration in a row over the bureau's unfavorable reports on AD-X2, a $3-a-shot product manufactured by Jess M. Ritchie of Oakland, Calif.

Astin has been temporarily reinstated in his job while a committee of the National Academy of Sciences studies the AD-X2 question. He testified today before the Senate Small Business Committee, which is investiating to see if Ritchie and his product have been treated fairly by the Standards Bureau and other government agencies.

TRIED TO BE ACCURATE

In a 34-page opening statement Astin declared bureau scientists "have tried to the best of our ability to be thorough and accurate in our studies."

Several committee members, including Chairman Thye (R-Minn) contended, however, the bureau should have tested AD-X2 under field conditions and not just in the laboratory.

"We didn't feel field tests were necessary because we could not find anything to test," Astin replied. "We found no indication that AD-X2 or any of the similar products that have appeared on the market in the past 40 years have any beneficial effect."

REFERENCE BY NAME

Sen. Gillette (D-Iowa) sharply questioned the bureau's referring to AD-X2 by name in an unfavorable report on it to the National Better Business Bureau.

Astin agreed that this was contrary to the bureau's usual practice of refraining from endorsing or condemning any specific process.

But he said the bureau thought it necessary to correct misstatements made, he said, by Ritchie and associates about their product.

Probers Ruining U. S. Reputation Should Be Barred, Mrs. F. D. R. Says

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said today she agrees with a professor who contends the House Un-American Activities Committee "is ruining our reputation in the rest of the world."

The widow of President Franklin D. Roosevelt also said she would like to see the Red-hunting Senate investigations subcommittee, which Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) heads, "done away with and everything possible done to strengthen the FBI in its functions."

She expressed the views in a question-and-answer article entitled "If You Ask Me," just released in the July issue of McCall's magazine. An editor's note to the article said "Mrs. Roosevelt has received so much mail concerning communism, security and civil liberties that she is devoting her entire page this month to questions on this subject."

QUESTIONS

The article consisted of questions asked by persons whose names were not given, and Mrs. Roosevelt's replies.

One writer asked whether she would "testify publicly about a friend who had once been a member of the Communist party but was now a loyal American," if she knew her testimony would cost the friend his job.

Her reply:

"Ordinarily if I knew a man had once been a Communist I would not hesitate to say so—and to add that I knew he was now a loyal citizen.

"But if I were dealing with such a hysterical situation that a statement of this kind would cost this man his chance to earn a living, and if I knew of no overriding reason for giving such testimony, I would refuse to give it."

Another writer asked about her relations with the American Youth Congress while her husband was president.

She said that when the group voted to oppose the U. S. stand against Nazi Germany's alliance with Red Russia "I wrote then that I could no longer work with a group that had obviously fallen under the spell of Communist leadership."

REJECTED INVITATION

". . . The American Youth Congress was not entertained in the White House again," she said, adding that she rejected an invitation to work with them again after Germany and Russia went to war.

"I told them no, pointing out that they had lied to me," she wrote. "When I asked them, one after another, at a meeting in my sitting room in the White House whether they were pro-Soviet or had any connections with organizations favorable to the Soviets, each one had assured me that he had not."

The name of the professor who thought the un-American activities committee is hurting the U. S. reputation abroad was not stated in the article. But Mrs. Roosevelt wrote that "I think this professor's statement is absolutely correct."

She said she also thought the educator had acted properly in making the statement to his students.

One question asked how she would feel about an investigation of Communists among the clergy.

By ROWLAND EVANS JR.

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—Tom Lyon, nominated by President Eisenhower as director of the Bureau of Mines, startled senators today with testimony that he is drawing a $5,000-a-year pension as a retired official of Anaconda Copper Corp.

Associated Press Wirephoto
GETS MINE PENSION
Tom Lyon

Lyon also declared that Congress was all wrong when it passed a federal mine safety law last year. If confirmed by the Senate, Lyon would be responsible for enforcing the safety law.

Lyon's testimony before the Senate Interior Committee took senators aback and perhaps jeopardized his chances of being confirmed. The 65-year-old mining engineer has already come under fire by John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers union, who is scheduled to testify tomorrow.

SURPRISE

The President's nominee drew glances of surprise as he testified that his pension could be cut off at the pleasure of Anaconda and then commented:

"You can't take these government jobs if you don't have outside income."

Legal experts said that as far as they knew, there is no law prohibiting a federal official from drawing a pension from private business. There is a law, however, barring top level federal officials from drawing outside salaries.

Lyon said he owns no Anaconda stock. He said he worked as an executive for Anaconda and its subsidiaries from 1916 to 1950. In late 1951, he became deputy chief of the Defense Materials Procurement Administration under the Truman administration.

Sen. Jackson (D-Wash) said Anaconda's right to chop off Lyon's pension at any time leaves Lyon "at their mercy, in a sense."

Jackson said he was shocked at Lyon's statement that Congress should never have passed the federal mine safety law, and he told Lyon:

FIRST MAN

"You are the first man ever to come before this committee and admit you're not in sympathy with the philosophy of the laws you will have to administer."

Lyon insisted, however, that if confirmed he would do his best to administer the law.

After the hearing, Jackson told newsmen that Lyon's $5,000 pension is really a salary because it can be cut off any time the company chooses.

Eisenhower's nomination of Lyon to replace John J. Forbes as head of the mines bureau was made over the violent protests of UMW Chief Lewis. Lewis said his coal miners would become "victims of ignorance or indifference in the enforcement of the proper standards of safety" in the mines if Lyon took charge of the bureau.

CONTROL

Lyon called the safety law "just that much more federal control" over the mining industry. He said the job was one for each state to handle and the Bureau of Mines "should not be a policeman for the coal industry." The safety law applies only to the coal mining industry.

Jackson asked Lyon if "human life doesn't come before material things."

Chambers' Book Gone? ---McCarthy

WASHINGTON, June 23 (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said today someone is going too far and "is trying to make the State Department look silly" in removing books from U. S. overseas libraries.

McCarthy said he is particularly disturbed by published reports that Whittaker Chambers' book "Witness," a denunciation of communism, is among volumes ordered removed from some of the information libraries.

ASKS PROBE

He said he has asked the State Department to look into the reports and advise him what it finds.

McCarthy's reference was to an article published by The New York Times that a survey by its staff members showed several hundred books by more than 40 authors have been removed from the libraries.

It said the removals resulted from a series of six different orders by State Department policy makers issued since McCarthy first started investigating what he termed the placing of 30,000 "Communist books" in the libraries. It listed Chambers among authors whose books are being removed.

SHARP ATTACK

The State Department's International Information Agency (IIA), which administers the overseas library program, has consistently declined to make its book removal orders public, and newsmen have had no success in trying to arrange a news conference with its chief, Dr. Robert L. Johnson.

Sharp criticism of the book removal program came from the executive committee of he Federation of American Scientists, which in a statement asked President Eisenhower to call a halt to it.

Efforts to impose state censorship, the statement said, "reflect a totalitarian contempt for the capacity of a free people to separate truth from falsehood and have no place in America."

Churchill Talks Tension Easing With De Gasperi

LONDON, June 23—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill and Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi discussed prospects of easing East-West tension in Europe and Asia in an hour-long meeting today.

The two leaders, official sources said, surveyed many of the international issues which are to figure on the agenda being set for the Bermuda conference of American, British and French government heads.

Churchill and De Gasperi were said to have dwelt on chances of translating the six-nation European army project into a reality and of working out some sort of Italo-Yugoslav settlement over the oldtime Trieste dispute.

To Air Wheeler's Douglas Plaint

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—A House judiciary subcommittee announced today it will hold a public hearing next Tuesday on a move to impeach Supreme Court Justice William A. Douglas for his decision to stay the execution of atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg.

The only witness listed so far is Rep. W. M. (Don) Wheeler (Dem., Ga.), who sponsored the impeachment resolution. Wheeler said the Supreme Court's 6-3 verdict overruling Douglas strengthened his case against Douglas.

The affair will attract many Northwest rough-riders and will include mud splashing and bucking games.

Plea to Give Ike Say on Aid Mounts

By FELIX BELAIR JR.
Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, June 23—Republican members of the Senate were urged by their leaders today to support the $5,318,000,000 foreign aid authorization recommended by the foreign relations committee but without prejudice to heavy cuts by the appropriations committee in the separate money bill that is to follow.

A closed meeting of the Senate Republican conference also developed a preponderant sentiment against a provision in the House-passed foreign aid authorization that would make more than $1,000,000,000 of military assistance grants to western European countries conditional on ratification of the European army treaty.

A move to give President Eisenhower a completely free hand in the allocation of foreign aid funds by areas and purposes also developed in the Republican conference. It was the general view, according to Senator Millikin of Colorado, conference chairman, that the mutual security program should be kept flexible to meet changing situations abroad.

Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, chairman of the foreign relations committee, proposed the President be empowered to withhold or transfer any of the funds authorized for foreign military, economic or technical aid. He said he would offer an amendment to the bill in the Senate next week to carry out this purpose.

Rioting in East Germany and the muddled situation in Korea were mentioned by Wiley in justification of the unlimited discretion he proposed to invest in the President. Milliken reserved judgment on the Wiley proposal, saying he wanted to see the extent of the flexibility provided and "who is to do the flexing."

There were no formal votes or decisions taken at the conference.

Guaranteed Annual Wage Sought by Steelworkers

PITTSBURGH, June 23—(AP)—CIO United Steelworkers made its bid today for a guaranteed annual wage—a move which if successful could set the pattern for the steel and aluminum industries.

The USW presented this proposal and other issues in a two-hour bargaining session with the Aluminum Company of America.

A guaranteed annual wage, a USW spokesman explained, means the union wants the company to guarantee its 16,000 workers a minimum income a year. He didn't say how much.

The spokesman said the guaranteed annual wage issue was not brought up in the negotiations with the steel industry because the contract limited bargaining to hourly wages. It has been an objective of the USW for years but this year appears to be a prime factor.

Last year, the USW obtained a 21.4 cents an hour pay package hike for its ALCOA members, with 19 cents going toward wages and the balance for other benefits. The current contract expires July 31.

'WARNED ON LIQUOR CASES'

Limit for Brothers' Clients, Judge Vows

COLUMBIA, Miss., June 23—(AP)—Circuit Judge Sebe Dale tearfully reprimanded his 70-year-old attorney brother in court today for defending criminal liquor cases before his bench.

Attorney Rob Dale, the brother, had just hurled the accusation that the judge had displayed "prejudice and passion" against him and his clients in cases on liquor prohibition violations.

The attorney heatedly declared he had learned his jurist brother had told other people he would mete out maximum sentences to defendants represeted by Rob Dale.

BROTHER'S JUNIOR

The judge, several years his brother's junior, said in a statement from the bench that it was hard for him to answer the charge since it involved his own flesh and blood, his brother, "who has done so much for me and without whom I could not have traveled far."

Then, twice wiping away tears, the judge said that for 10 years before he became circuit judge, his brother had not represented liquor violators.

"I went to him and asked him not to take the whiskey cases; that to do so would be embarrassing to me," the judge continued. "I pled with him not to do it.

IS INDEPENDENT

"On his next birthday he will be 71 years old. He is financially independent and secure and is failing in health. I talked to my brothers and sisters and asked them to keep him away because he didn't need the money and it was impeding the court and embarrassing me.

"People were betting open and above board and making statements in my presence that because my brother represented the liquor cases they would not be tried.

"I told him and I will say quite frankly now that if he takes whiskey cases in my district—or my brother T. Price Dale too—and the result is a conviction, the penalty will be maximum given by law."

SOUGHT NEW TRIAL

The family courtroom drama unfolded as the elder brother sought a new trial for some of his clients who received maximum sentence under Mississippi's dry laws.

The judge choked with emotion said, "out of respect for the name of the father and mother given both of us. . . . Come what may, God being my helper, I will live my life so that when it is done none can say I failed to do my public duty."

Hostess Loses $85 at Fish Fry

While an Atlanta Negro woman gave a fish fry for fellow church members in her back yard, someone entered the bedroom of her home and took her wallet and $85, police said.

The woman told police a guest asked if he could go use her telephone. She told officers the wallet was on the bed near the telephone. Police are seeking the "guest."

Financier Strauss Picked By Ike as Head of AEC

By W. H. LAWRENCE
New York Times News Service, Special to The Atlanta Constitution

WASHINGTON, June 23—Lewis L. Strauss, New York financier and rear admiral in the U. S. Naval Reserve, has been chosen by President Eisenhower to be chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

His nomination will go to the Senate shortly, perhaps tomorrow, and the expectation is that he will be confirmed promptly so that he can take over from Gordon Dean, whose resignation was delayed until June 30 in order to give the President time to select a new AEC head.

Admiral Strauss, who was named to membership on the AEC when it was established in 1946, was associated with Dean as a member of the commission minority which successfully urged upon former President Truman an all-out effort by this country to develop the hydrogen bomb.

He resigned from the AEC in April, 1950, to return to his private interests. But President Eisenhower brought him back to the government in March of this year as a special assistant to the President as "liaison adviser on atomic energy matters."

The nomination is certain to be popular in the Congress, where Strauss already has been credited officially with pressing the development of a detection system which let the United States in on the secret that the Soviet Union had cracked the secret of producing atomic weapons and had exploded its own bomb in 1949.

I'm Sex Maniac, Man Yells on Seizing Woman

Posing as an insurance agent, the man who grabbed a 41-year-old Atlanta woman in her doorway and yelled, "I'm a sex maniac," was being sought Tuesday by police.

She said the tall, 130-pound man induced her to open the door by claiming he was an insurance agent. He then ran after her, attempting to show her lewd pictures, the woman said.

When she turned and knocked the glasses from his eyes, he fled, she said.

Nearly $800,000 is being spent this summer for improvements and additions to the three southwest Atlanta high schools under the direction of the city board of education, Tom Clift, assistant superintendent in charge of business affairs, has announced.

A new cafeteria will be added to Brown High School and new classrooms and other additions will be made available to students at Southwest and Sylvan High Schools.

The new Brown High cafeteria wil seat approximately 400 persons when completed and will cost approximately $60,000. The school Parent-Teacher Asosciation, under the direction of Milton Farris, raised $1,038 during the past year to be used in securing furnishings for the cafeteria.

LABORATORY MOVED

Clift also said that the addition of the cafeteria will necessitate the change of the location of the chemical laboratory, but added that both units will be ready for use in the fall term of school.

Bodin and Lamberson is serving as architect for the Brown project and Arco Co. is contractor.

Seven new classrooms and a combination gymnasium - auditorium are among the additions to Sylvan Hills High School which will be ready for use when school opens in September.

Total improvements to the school will cost $512,156 and include two science laboratories and two student and one faculty rest room.

GYM-AUDITORIUM

The combination gymnasium-auditorium will seat 1,500 persons as a gym and 2,000 as an auditorium. It will include facilities for boys' and girls' physical education departments, a band room, room for vocal music classes, office space, storage, showers, lockers and dressing rooms. The military department will also use the building and an indoor rifle range will be available.

Architect for the project is Frances M. Daves and Associates and Concrete Builders, Inc. is contractor.

A total of $196,200 will be spent at Southwest for additions which will include seven classrooms, two workshops with storage, two business education rooms, three science rooms, an enclosed stair tower and military facilities with rifle range, armory, storage and offices.

Southwest will also receive an addition to its cafeteria which will increase the seating capacity by 90 persons.

A. Thomas Bradbury is architect for the Southwest project and contractor is J. J. Black & Co.

Work Begins On Federal Warehouse

Construction of a new federal warehouse on Lawrence Ave., East Point, began recently with the breaking of ground by Mayor Al Roberts.

The new warehouse, of approximately 400,000 square feet, will be use to house storage and service distribution center for common use items for the General Services Administration.

The annual rental of the warehouse will be about $218,000 on a five-year lease with renewal option, Hugh K. Mahon, general counsel of the Services Administration, said Tuesday.

"With the occupancy of this new warehouse all of General Services warehousing facilities will be located together. At the present time warehousing is scattered in various sections of the city. This new warehouse will eliminate the traffic problem," Mahon said.

General Services does a volume purchase business of about $10,000,000 annually, said Mahon. The agency supplies all the other government agencies in the southeast.

The building is being constructed by General Warehouse Inc., and will be ready for occupancy by Dec. 1, R. E. Dorough, vice-president of the warehouse company said.

Americus Boom Thrives On Farming, Industry

By JOE RICKENBAKER
Constitution Staff Writer

AMERICUS, June 23—A farmer tending his fields silhouetted against the glow of the fires of industry, has become a symbol of the balanced economy that has brought Americus to the forefront of Georgia's wide-awake and progressive cities.

Located in the center of a rich agricultural section, Americus in the last few years has become an industrial center as well, with 32 industrial plants employing more than 1,500 persons and an annual payroll of several million dollars.

Largest industry in Americus is a shirt factory producing approximately 4,000 dozen shirts weekly. The plant employs some 600 persons and plans to increase production in the near future, thereby adding 160 names to the payroll.

Another lumber company saws all types of lumber and does a large annual business in lumber products such as doors, window sashes, etc. The company employs 150.

Americus is also the site of the Alabama Division of the Seaboard Railway headquarters. The railroad has a large diesel shop located here and the annual payroll of this industry alone amounts to more than $1,000,000. tries that are directly related to the agriculture of the section. For example, there are several large cotton and peanut seed crushing plants and gins.

The agriculture of Sumter County has almost completely been transformed from row crops to grain and livestock farming.

When the Board of Regents of the University of Georgia announced plans for three regional experiment stations, some 350 local people subscribed to a fund and purchased 460 acres of land and obtained the largest of the three stations.

Americus is the site of one of the few county-owned livestock auction barns in the state. The association handles more than $3,000,000 worth of business annually.

Pecans are another major agricultural product of the county.

Thirty freight and six passenger trains pass daily on the Seaboard and Central of Georgia Railroads that go through the city.

Americus is also at the junction of U. S. Highway 19 running from Montreal, Canada, to Miami, Fla., and the East and West U. S. Highway 280. Three other paved highways, State 49, 3 and 27 also pass through Americus.

Two hundred and 10 retail establishments and 70 service establishments located at this important transportation center comprise the business section of Americus. The annual retail sales are more than $13,000,000.

The home of Georgia Southwestern Junior College, a fully accredited two-year junior college branch of the University of Georgia, and the South Georgia Trade and Vocational School, Americus has become recognized as a leading state educational center.

Approximately 1,316 students are enrolled in the three white schools and 1,355 in the two Negro schools.

With the construction of a new $2,000,000 130-bed hospital, plans were made that will set up a nurses training school at the junior college. The students will receive their academic training at the college and practical nursing and medical experience at the hospital.

Truck Suit Studied by 3 Judges

Three federal judges Tuesday pondered the question of whether the Malone Freight Lines, Inc., should be granted a franchise to haul textile products from Georgia and Alabama to Northern markets.

Earlier, they heard arguments on an injunction petition of nine trucking firms who seek to prevent the Interstate Commerce Commission from granting Malone the franchise on the grounds the action "would put an additional carrier into an overcrowded field."

The truckers claimed that textile mills in the area had supported the proposed granting of the franchise in order to obtain lower hauling rates offered by the Malone firm.

More than a dozen lawyers, representing the United States, railroads and textile mills as well as the ICC and the truckers, concluded arguments Tuesday before U. S. Circuit Judge Robert Russell and U. S. District Judges Frank Hooper and Boyd Sloan at U. S. District Court here.

Ike Hay, special attorney for the ICC, argued that the franchise decision was based on evidence that trucking firms now operating in the area are not giving good service. He mentioned frequent delays in picking up and delivering shipments and said the truckers sometimes refuse to haul small loads.

"Georgia and Alabama textile manufacturers need service which will put them on a par with North and South Carolina mills," Hay said. He said shipping delays now handicap the local mills in marketing their products.

Candler Outlines Projects For DeKalb Grand Jurors

About 60 members of the DeKalb Grand Jurors Association at their quarterly meeting heard County Commissioner Scott Candler give a forecast of public projects the county hopes to finish before 1954, including an expansion of the water system.

Candler also reviewed recent growth of the county and told the association of a need for a courthouse annex.

Roe Callaway presided at the meeting, with Judges Frank Guess and Clarence Vaughn of DeKalb Superior Court and Judge D. P. Phillips of City Court of Decatur as guests.

Also present were Georgia Beatie, president of the Fulton County Grand Jurors Association, and Lafayette Davis, chairman of the executive board of the Fulton group.

Completion of the county's current water system expansion program was emphasized in Candler's talk. The commissioner said the project is being financed mostly with $1,000,000 in water bonds voted in September, 1952. About $100,000 from water revenue certificates will be used to complete the expansion financing, he added.

The water system expansion includes installation of several new north-south mains, expansion of the water works plant and construction of a new storage and pressure tank. Another tank will be built in the Avondale area when funds are available, the commissioner said.

About one-third of the $1,000,000 roads improvement program approved by voters last fall has been completed, Candler told the group. The rest of the program should be completed by the end of the year, he added.

A $100,000 addition to the Decatur-DeKalb Library, in the planning stage since September, will be constructed this year and branch libraries will be built at Doraville, Brookhaven and possibly Tucker, Candler said.

The county will participate in construction of health clinic at Lithonia and Doraville, the commissioner said, and the old county asphalt plant is being remodeled for use as a dog pound.

A $300,000 addition to the DeKalb Building should be completed before 1954, Candler said. An enlarging of the county jail is being undertaken in conjunction with that project, he added.

Candler told the jurors' group the county needs a courthouse annex that would provide space for four additional courtrooms and tax offices.

Such a building would permit the county to abandon temporary office facilities in the Trinity Building, he said.

A West End youth was selected Monday as the most valuable member of the Atlanta Teen Council.

He was active in dramatics in school and was a member of the senior play cast. He received Rich's citizenship award at graduation exercises at Southwest.

The council award was presented by Miss Cathy Hamby, city recreational supervisor, at the Teen Council banquet.

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT GOAL

Teachers' Study Group Takes Field Trip Today

The 36 DeKalb County teachers who this summer are studying means of improving their school system will get a look Wednesday at the system's physical facilities and the natural resources of the county.

The all-day field trip will be part of the group's work in the DeKalb corp group of the Emory University summer teachers' workshop at Druid Hills School.

The teachers, representing almost every school in the DeKalb system, are studying three phases of county school work as their special project in the workshop. Similiar DeKalb groups have been part of the Emory workshop since 1947.

Three-fourths of the teachers' tuition to the summer school is paid by the County Board of Education, according to Mrs. Alice Bohannon, DeKalb instructional supervisor who is liason between the study group and DeKalb school administration.

Next Tuesday, the teachers will leave Druid Hills School at 9 a. m. to tour the county by bus.

Dr. W. B. Baker of Emory will present a talk on plant life in the Arabia section of the county. At Lithonia, Nelson Severinghaus will talk on mineral deposits in the county and later the group will visit Stone Mountain and a granite quarry.

The group will tour Lithonia School and will visit Clarkston School and the near-completed Candler-McAfee School.

The field trip is designed both to acquaint the teachers with county resources and to give them a chance to plan the type of trip they might conduct with a class, Mrs. Bohannon explained.

The DeKalb group at Emory is the only one of several core study groups that has its goals mapped out before the workshop starts each summer. Several other DeKalb teachers participate in other units of the workshop.

Under the direction of Dr. Dwight Teel, curriculum co-ordinator of Corpus Christi, Texas, schools, the DeKalb educators are studying in three fields.

One sub-committee of the group will attempt to develop a new 12th grade English program as a part of the total public school English curriculum. Another will study classroom mental health problems and the third will study programs for the exceptional students, both retarded and advanced.

During their workshop studies, the DeKalb teachers will use books, films and recordings on their respective subjects, with a staff of outside educators as advisors.

At the end of the summer, the group will prepare a report on its findings, a copy of which will go to every DeKalb teacher when school starts.

Such things as new courses, an audio-visual program and a handbook given to all new teachers have been developed from summer workshop findings in the past, School Superintendent Jim Cherry said.

The summer study is also used as a basis for year-round in-service teacher fraining, he added.

Court's Ruling Favors Papers In $500,625 Suit

A Fulton County Superior Court, after 30 minutes deliberation, ruled Tuesday in favor of Atlanta Newspapers, Inc., in a $500,625 libel suit brought by a southside fruit stand operator.

A. S. McDonald, in a suit filed last October 29, alleged that he was libeled in an Atlanta Journal account of the investigation of the theft of a safe from his store on the night of April 11, 1952.

Chief of Relaxation

In 1947, the peak year for sleeping pills in the United States, 9,600 pounds of the dozing bullets were sold in the country, enough to put the entire population to sleep for 20 days. In 1951, sales were down to 6,400 pounds, or only enough to put all the Democrats to sleep for 20 days, and the downward trend has continued.

A certain portion of Atlanta is reasonably sure that a man named Joseph A. Kennedy is one of the leaders in this decline.

Kennedy is an Irishman, naturally. He was 30 years a chief in the U. S. Navy and in 1945 he retired. He is also an author, but that's getting ahead of the story. First, as far as Atlanta is concerned, the story began when he came to town something over three years ago.

Bisher

Chief had been stationed at Athens during the war teaching the preflight school students his unusual arts. When the war ended and retirement came, he first made a pass at Texas, then one at New York before his wife took charge and gave him orders back to Georgia. He came to Atlanta with the idea of establishing his own "rehabilitorium," which is his name for a garage for the human body.

He's a stickler for condition. At age 57, he can do a 200-pound extension press lift, a front lever on the rings, a leg lift of 500 pounds, a fingertip half-lever off the floor and more rope tricks than Cheeta. While this may sound a bit undignified for a man of 57, Chief is a firm believer in the biological rather than the chronological age. In other words, you're as old as you feel. Maintaining this fine trim, he was a constant caller at the YMCA on Luckie St. and shortly he was absorbed by Lloyd Sanborn's staff as assistant athletic director.

He started off with a businessmen's exercise group at the lunch hour. Each day the concluding act was a five-minute "exercise" in relaxation. The tired executive athletes were told to lie down, close their eyes, roll them downward, visualize black, tense their bay windows, relax them easily and just lie still for five minutes.

—A Volleyball for a Pillow

It was shortly discovered that an average of 75 percent of the scholars in relaxation dropped off to sleep in the five minutes. A little later a YMCA member asked Kennedy if he couldn't teach him how to relax. Down in the swimming pool one day, an inquisitive Tubby Walton asked him "what about this sleeping business?"

With a wet diving board for a bed and a volleyball for a pillow, Kennedy showed him what he meant. He put the large life insurance salesman to sleep. Pretty soon he was putting as many as 100 to sleep at a time, though sleep isn't necessarily the object.

"I just teach people how to relax, that's all," Kennedy said Tuesday. He had stopped off for a visit on the way to Athens where he was to lecture the Women's Club. "There's no Yogi or magic, or hypnosis in this at all. People have just forgotten how to relax. You relax by getting tension out of your body. That's all I do. I stop people from doing, and when they stop doing they relax, and when they relax they fall asleep.

"It's as simple as that, except that people are moving so fast and chasing the almighty dollar so hard these days they've forgotten what good sleep is like. You've heard that old, saying, 'Sleep like a baby'? Well, as we grow older we throw mental monkey wrenches into our lives and we come up with insomnia, nervous tension and turn to sleeping pills. I'm not teaching anything new. I'm just reminding people of a natural process of living that they've forgotten."

—Even the British Muddle In

When Kennedy's courses reached such a high state of popularity locally, the word spread. National magazines and newsreels featured his work, and then one day a representative of Prentice Hall Co. came to see him about a book. Chief said he wasn't a writer, and the agent said he didn't care, he didn't have to be able to write to sell what he was selling.

This was late in 1951. It took Chief a year to write his book, and it came out just last month. "Relax and Live" ($3.95) is the title. It's already in it's second printing, and a British publisher is preparing an edition over there.

Chief left the YMCA in February. He's too busy on the road lecturing and teaching people how to take it easy and live longer, but he'd like to go back when the book hustle slows down. Of course if the book business gets any better, the Chief may have to go somewhere and take a refresher course in how to relax himself.

"Got to run now," he said, a ball of energy with thin white hair and stern features. "Got to keep my date with the ladies in Athens."

And I curled up on top of my desk, closed my eyes, rolled them downward, flexed my abdomen, visualized black and went to sleep.

Bucs Get Two Hits, But Win

Spahn's Effort Spoiled in Eighth

MILWAUKEE, June 23—(AP)—The last-place Pirates defeated the National League leading Milwaukee Braves 1-0, Tuesday night in the first game of the series and snapped Warren Spahn's seven-game winning streak. The second hit off Milwaukee, a single by Carlos Bernier with two on base and two out in the eighth, delivered the winning run.

The defeat prevented Milwaukee from giving a four-game lead over second place Brooklyn. The Dodgers bowed, 3-2, at Cincinnati.

Hall snapped Spahn's streak, although the Braves' southpaw outpitched his rival. Spahn allowed only two hits and fanned twelve. Hall gave up six hits and struck out five.

Roberts held the Cubs scoreless until the sixth when Frankie Baumholtz doubled and scored on Dee Fondy's single. The Philly now has hurled 25 consecutive complete games. He has lost four this season.

Cards Drub Giants On Two Wild Innings

ST. LOUIS, June 23 (AP) — Twice scoring seven runs in one inning, the St. Louis Cardinals tonight drubbed the New York Giants, 15-8, as southpaw Harvey Haddix survived two big frames to score his ninth victory of the year.

To gain their twelfth triumph in the last 14 starts and pull within one-half game of second place, the Cardinals tallied more runs than in any previous contest and bunched 12 of their 15 hits in the first and fourth innings. Haddix' three-run homer featured a seven run first inning and Del Rice's grand-slam homer highlighted the seven-run fourth.

Chicks' Homers Beat Crackers in Finale

Landenberger, Fogg Overpower Atlanta In First Home Series Loss of Season

By EDWIN POPE

A stomped-down kid with a misleading stance and a tall veteran with a permanent Southern Association address stamped the Atlanta Crackers with their first losing home series of the season Tuesday night.

Memphis' Kenny Landenberger and Floyd Fogg were the bogey-men in an 8-5 hammering before 4,665 Ladies' Night watchers at Ponce de Leon Park.

Landenberger, 5-8, 200-pound first baseman who stands facing the pitcher as though he will beat the ball into the ground from straight above his head, dealt off two home runs.

Fogg, who has seen third-base service with Little Rock, New Orleans and Nashville in this league, splattered his second homer in two nights and sprayed in a pair of singles for good measure.

It was the Chicks' third victory of the four-game stand and sent the Crackers packing off to an eight-game journey through New Orleans and Little Rock with their home record chiselled to 22-13.

Starting at 9:30 p. m. (EST) in New Orleans Wednesday, Gene Mauch's mistreated men try to improve upon a melancholy road mark of 12-22. If the pitching does not improve over the past two evenings, the unhappy foreign trend stands every chance of continuing.

Luke Appling's Marauders stayed dead-bent on the fluctuating league lead with a 12-hit cannonading of loser Jack Brittin, Art Fowler and John Fitzgerald. That held them a game-and-a-half behind first-place Birmingham and ran their joyous total for the Atlanta series to 49 hits.

The loss knocked the Crackers 3½ games behind Birmingham.

Hitting was 'most as big a problem as pitching to the Crackers in this finale. Twelve men were left on base before victor Tommy Fine and eighth-inning reliefer Dixie Howell. They bagged nine hits but, like Monday's 11, all were singles.

Brittin, recently sore-armed, went after his fifth victory against three defeats but was in instant hot water. George Noga rapped the first pitch to left for a double. Ed White singled Noga to third and Noga scored

MOORE DID IT BEFORE; HE CAN—!

Ancient Archie 3-1 Over Ex-Champ Maxim

OGDEN, Utah, June 23—(AP)—Workman-like Archie Moore of California, at 36 a relic in the ring, remained the betting favorite Tuesday to retain his world's lightweight championship against 31-year-old Joey Maxim of Cleveland over the 15-round route Wednesday night.

The champion from San Diego was generally quoted a 3 to 1 choice by the betting people. This was comparable to the 8-5 margin he held the night that he lifted the crown for the 175-pound division from handsome Joey, in St. Louis last Dec. 17.

Copromoters Al Warden and Kenny Mayne, banking on statewide interest in Utah's first title match in history, maintained hopes that more than 10,000 fans would pay from $5 to $20 to see the affair and bring gate receipts up toward $100,000.

The Moore-Maxim fight will be screened to the nation's television audience over the CBS network, starting at 9 p. m., (EST). The inter-mountain states will be blacked out and there will be no radio broadcast anywhere.

TRENTON, N. J.—New Jersey Athletic Commissioner Abe J. Greene called on the boxing fraternity Tuesday to dress neatly and behave perfectly for the television viewers in the homes of America. Greene said: "Because boxing has now become part of the home scene through the innovation of television, all principals engaged in any boxing performance are urgently counseled to maintain neatness of dress and perfection of behavior."

BROOKLYN, Willie Dockery, 160½, Brooklyn, won a 10-round split decision over Al Winn, 165½, New York, in the main bout at the Ridgewood Grove Tuesday night.

NEW YORK: Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club, returned from a European trip Tuesday with the signed contract of England's Randy Turpin for a world middleweight title bout with Carl (Bobo) Olson of San Francisco. Olson has not yet signed for the bout, expected to be held in New York's Yankee Stadium, Aug. 27.

Mary Lena Faulk Gains British Quarter-finals

PORTHCAWL, Wales, June 23—(AP)—Mary Lena Faulk of Thomasville, Ga., rang up two impressive victories Tuesday to gain the quarter-final round of the British Women's golf tournament.

The only American entrant, Miss Faulk first eliminated Mrs. Kitty MacCann of Ireland, the 1951 champion, 3 and 2, then she ousted Daintry Chisholm of Canada, 5 and 3.

The Georgia Miss got off to a shaky start in both matches but settled down to win easily.

Against Mrs. MacCann, one of the pre-tournament favorites, Miss Faulk played the first nine holes in even par 37 to gain a two-hole lead. She never lost her advantage.

Miss Faulk plays the Belgian star, Arlette Jacquet, Wednesday morning in a bid for the semi-finals.

Ft. Mac Wins Behind Wall

John Wall, former Birmingham Baron and property of the Boston Red Sox, spun a six hitter and fanned 11 batters in hurling Fort McPherson to a 4-3 victory over the Keesler Air Base baseball nine here Tuesday.

Ray Wiles' homelings got to Vic Thompson, ex-Little Rock flinger, for nine blows, including a pair each by Bobby Willis and Buster Hall, a two-run homer in the seventh inning by Chuck Canavage and a run-producing triple by Wall.

Ray Fox and Bo Cartmill garnered two hits each for Keesler, which lost to the same team the day before, 7-6, in ten innings.

Mangrum Wastes No Words on British Open Prospect: 'It Ought To Be Between Me and Ben'

NEW YORK, June 23—(AP)—Lloyd Mangrum talks the same way he plays golf—straight from the shoulder, no hedging.

Biding his time here until he leaves Friday for the British Open in Carnoustie, the phlegmatic little pro said:

"It ought to be between me and Ben."

Ben, of course, is Ben Hogan, four-time U. S. Open champion, who arrived in Carnoustie Tuesday for two weeks' practice over the historic seaside course. The tournament opens July 6.

In their excitement over Hogan's first try at the British title, most golf fans seem to have forgotten the other cold, steel-eyed Texan who for years has been one of America's foremost tournament pros.

Everybody has forgotten, that is, except Mangrum.

"If I didn't think I could win it, I wouldn't be making the trip," he said.

Then he added wryly:

"Of course, you know, I've reached the point where money doesn't matter any more. I'm just in this game to make friends."

The lithe one-time Houston caddy, whose squinting eyes and pencil moustache make him a movie version of the old Mississippi River gambler, also will be making his first bid for the British Open.

But he has had more experience than Hogan both with Britain's feared seaside courses and the smaller British ball. He's afraid of neither.

"I've played on their courses over there—although not at Carnoustie," he said. "Their courses are no different than ours—some good, some bad.

"But hit the ball right on any of them, and you'll score okay. As for the smaller ball, well, we adopted the larger ball over here to make play tougher.

"You can drive the smaller ball farther and it stands to reason it'll be easier in putting. Smaller ball, same size hole."

Mangrum said he had picked up a few boxes of the British balls and may do some practicing around here before he leaves by air Friday at 4 p. m.

He played at Canton, England, with the U. S. Ryder Cup team in 1949, scoring the decision over Fred Daly which gave the U. S. a 7 to 5 victory. Last fall he toured Australia, winning a series of tournaments with the smaller British ball.

Bolling, Gernert Bat Indians Down Twice

BOSTON, June 23 (AP)—Milt Bolling's two-out double in the tenth inning ruined Bob Chakales' five-hit pitching stint and gave the Boston Red Sox a sweep of their day-night doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians, 2-1. Dick Gernert's wind-blown fly dropped for a two-run triple in the eighth inning to give the Red Sox an afternoon 6-4 triumph.

NEW YORK, June 23 (AP) — The Chicago White Sox exploded for six runs in the fifth inning tonight and went on to trounce the high flying New York Yankees, 11-3, before a Yankee Stadium crowd of 46,756. Nellie Fox drove in four Chicago runs with a pair of triples as the Sox hung the third defeat of the year on "Big Chief" Allie Reynolds.

Baron Juniors Wallop Nuggets

The DeKalb Barons made merry at the expense of the Dahlonega Nuggets Tuesday night for a 22-2 victory and their fifth win against one loss in American Legion Junior competition this season.

Lefty Milton Hartley pitched all the way for the Barons, giving up but two hits. He struck out six.

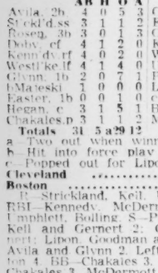
Ever hear of Savannah, Tennessee?

It's about 50 miles northwest of Muscle Shoals and Tuscumbia, Ala., and the fishermen in Hardin County there exemplified the spirit of conservation Sunday.

They stood shoulder to shoulder and dragged in channel cats by the hundreds — and promptly turned them over to game wardens to throw back.



Bill Allen

It was the first of four Community Fishing Days which end Wednesday. The game wardens tagged each fish with a metal price-stamp, and visitors who catch the fish will get up to $100 for catching them again. Only visitors can win. If a Hardin County catfisherman lands one, he tosses it back and receives a "Sportsman's Certificate."

COACH CATCH—I may be a little late hearing about this, but the Gridiron Maestro, Gen. Bob Neyland has found "a fisherman's paradise" in Mexico and wants to share the secret with others.

While he was in the hospital not long ago, he found an ad in an outdoors magazine about a camp near Ciudad del Carmen on the Gulf. Bob Harris of Knoxville went with the general, and both reported that the bass and trout attacked first their lures and/or whatever happened to have hold of the lures at the moment—any lure, according to the general, who said they lost all they had.

"Looking back on it," General Neyland said, "I wonder if anyone had ever been in that river before with a plug."

Poor R. E. L. Dodd—he works harder for every ounce of bass meat he gets than he does for a new Ga. Tech tackle, and here comes the old man lording it over him again.

TACKLE TIPS—If you wrap nylon leader material in tight coils and find it stays in a corkscrew shape, and no amount of pulling and rubbing will straighten it, try this: Pull the nylon monafilament slowly through a doubled piece of old innertube with heavy pressure on the innertube from your fingers. It will take only about twice. . . . It's especially good for bream fishermen who wrap their leader around the cork. . . . If you, too, have had more luck in this hot weather with a small spinner-type flashy lure, on your fly rod and want to use it casting, then get a small dipsey sinker (that's the kind with the swivel) and hook it in the snap that connects your line with the spinner. You might add a piece of pork rind for the smallmouth fraternity down deep right now. . . . Application of reel oil to the gearbox receiver every two hours of actual fishing, and to the level wind mechanism every four hours, doubles the reel's lifetime, according to researchers. . . . Can't remind you of that too often.

Teed's Hit Tops Vols; Barons Win

BILL FERGUSON
United Press Sports Writer

Late - inning lightning that struck in Mobile and Birmingham knocked jittery Nashville out of the Southern Association lead Tuesday night.

The bolt that dropped the Vols was a five-run explosion by Mobile in the eighth inning that gave the Bears a 7-6 victory.

Condensed From Wire Services

The man who only a few seasons ago ate his way out of the American League is currently leading that league with the lowest earned runs average.

Frank (Spec) Shea, former New York Yankee ace who went on a diet to regain major league status, tops the junior circuit with an average of 2.25. The Washington right-hander has allowed only 16 earned runs in 61 innings and has a 6-1 record.

Philadelphia Phillie Robin Roberts, however, boasts an even more impressive m

Connolly, Hart Win Wimbledon Singles

'Little Mo' Defeats Killian; Hart Downs Britain's Morgan

By STERLING SLAPPEY

WIMBLEDON, England, June 23—(AP)—Maureen Connolly and Doris Hart—merciless Americans from opposite sides of the nation but with the same overriding will to win—didn't allow stagestruck opponents a game Tuesday in winning their Wimbledon singles tennis matches.

But they didn't get all the limelight.

Mrs. Maria Weiss of Argentina popped up in a pair of gold lace panties. And that was just what Wimbledon seemed to need. She astonished the women, thrilled the men and dumfounded the ball boys.

Mrs. Weiss, close friend of Argentine President Juan Peron, won easily from Britain's slightly befuddled Laura Morgan, 6-1, 6-2. But her tennis wasn't the thing that drew the cheers and the photographers.

Miss Connolly opened the second day's activity on center court with a 21-minute, 6-0, 6-0, victory over Dora Kilian, a pretty, but none too skilled played from South Africa.

While that massacre was going on in front of 13,000 fans, Miss Hart was doing precisely the same to Jeanette Morgan of Britain. About the only difference was Doris took three minutes longer.

Both the Connolly and Hart matches were second rounders. Maureen, San Diego's grand slam player, and Doris, the Coral Gables, Fla., star, drew first-round byes. Mrs. Weiss' match was a first rounder.

Maureen, seeded first for Wimbledon, is the first girl ever to hold at one time the championships of America, Britain, France and Australia. Doris is seeded second and won here in 1951.

No men's singles matches were on the order-of-play Tuesday for this plush, tradition-draped tournament. But, 25 men's doubles and four mixed doubles matches were wedged among the girls' battles going on all over this 16-court lot.

The first-seeded Australian doubles team of Ken Rosewall and Lewis Hoad, came through precisely as it was supposed to do. The score over R. Buser, Switzerland, and J. I. Devroe, Belgium, was 6-1, 6-0, 6-3.

America's best doubles duo and the No. 2 seeded outfit here—Vic Seixas of Philadelphia and Gardnar Mulloy of Miami Beach, Fla.—won in a real fire-breathing battle against Britain's Geoff Paish and Tony Mottram.

The count was 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. Paish's craftiness, court knowledge and willingness to take chances, plus Mulloy's fine serving topped off the center court fight.

BEARS BUZZ AS 'SORE-ARMED' RUTHERFORD BURNS UP B-BALL

MOBILE, Ala., June 23—(AP)—The Mobile Bear front office was trying Tuesday to fit together the puzzle of its 1953 mystery man, ex-Brooklyn Dodger pitcher Johnny Rutherford.

Mobile Register Sports Editor Vincent Johnson said the subject was brought up with Fresco Thompson, head of the Dodger farm system, when the report came in that Rutherford had pitched a one-hit shutout for Newport News of the Class B Piedmont League last week.

Rutherford was sent to the Bears at the start of the season with instructions to work the kinks out of a sore arm in the warm Southern sun. Carried on the Mobile roster, he would report to the park each night, toss a few pitches in batting practice, then retire to the sidelines.

Last week he was suddenly shifted to Newport News, another Dodger farm club.

Johnson discussed the transfer in his column:

"He never pitched an inning for Mobile all season although the Bears were paying a portion of his salary. He hurled batting practice, and according to Ed Head (Mobile manager) threw with no signs of a sore arm although he never attempted to throw a curve ball.

"Finally, Head was given instructions by Brooklyn to just give him the ball and tell him he was the pitcher and that was it. But before Head could do it, he (Rutherford) was struck with a mysterious fever and was never able to make it. And the fever was genuine and puzzling because rest in bed brought it down. But up it went when he got up.

Brooklyn ordered him sent to Newport News since he wasn't helping the Bears. There was no doubt that Brooklyn thought his arm wasn't too bad.

"Rutherford himself was certain he had been sent to Mobile only as a disciplinary measure because he refused to pitch in one of the World Series games last year.

"Rutherford claimed he did right in telling Charley Dressen that he didn't think he he could pitch because it allowed the manager to send in someone else who could have held the Yanks.

"But the front office looked at it otherwise. They claimed it's the manager's responsibility when he sends a pitcher in and the only thing the pitcher can do is to go in and do his best."

Record Field of 260 Expected In Seventh Peach Swim Meet

Special to The Constitution

LaGRANGE, June 23—A record field of 260 men, women and children will give Callaway Pool's six-lane water course a heavier traffic load than the New Jersey Turnpike Friday and Saturday in the Seventh Annual Southern Peach Swimming and Diving Championships here.

The entry list exceeds by 30 the previous high set in 1950 when closed city events were included on the program. Virtually all of the entries this year are from out of town so the old standard of 160 visiting competitors has also been erased.

Major lure for the swimmers, who are coming from 33 places, some as far away as Chicago, Indiana and New York, are three national junior AAU events, the men's 100-yard freestyle, and the 100-yard backstroke and 400-yard freestyle relay for women. The men's century will be run off Friday night, the two women's events Saturday.

There will be events for men and women over 16, boys and girls under 16 and kids under 13.

Defending its 1952 team championship, the Athens Swim Club is favored to take top honors among the men, especially since Reid Patterson, its national champion will be back in action. Other top entries from Athens, which is the University of Georgia team plus high schooler Tommy Blakely, are Marshall Floyd and Spencer Boyd, a diver.

Floyd, Southeastern Conference champion in the 200-yard freestyle and 150-yard individual medley, will go after the national 100-yard title here.

Favored among the women is the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Swimming Association with Olympic star Carolyn Green, their best point-maker.

The Fort Lauderdale gals didn't compete here last year because of the Olympics, but have won the Southern Peach title every time they've entered.

Miss Green, on the AAU all-America team, holds four Peach records and two national marks.

The girls' defending team champion is the Atlanta Athletic Club and it must be rated a contender again this year along with the Lafayette, Ind., Swim Club. The Lafayette team, made up of girls from Purdue University, placed second at Daytona Beach and is sending four entries here, including breaststroker Mary Link of Atlanta.

Trials and final events are scheduled Friday morning, afternoon and night and Saturday morning and night.

CAST OFF LEG, PATTERSON BACK IN PEACH MEET CAST

Special to The Constitution

ATHENS, June 23—A specially-designed water-proof cast made of plastic has put some kick into the Athens Swim Club's entry in the Southern Peach Swimming and Diving Championships at LaGrange this week end.

The story began six weeks ago when Reid Patterson, University of Georgia NCAA and AAU 100-yard freestyle champion, broke his leg in a pickup softball game.

It takes more than a broken leg to keep Patterson out of the water, however, and a week after the injury he was fitted from his knee down with the special cast. He wore the cast about a month and during that time was able to continue his conditioning program.

The cast was removed last week and Georgia swimming coach B. W. "Bump" Gabrielson reports that his star pupil is just about as good as new.

Peach Bowl Lists Seven-Event Card

Twenty-eight drivers and seven events feature the action at Peach Bowl Speedway Wednesday night, with a special added attraction of a novice affair.

A newcomer making his second appearance at the bowl will be Don Wigley, who will be driving car No. 4.

Stanford Rips To NCAA Golf Crown

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 23—(AP)—Stanford University ended North Texas State's four-year reign as team golf champion of the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tuesday.

While the Californians carried away team honors in the 56th annual meet on the Broadmoor Course, Colorado University's Merle Backlund grabbed medalist honors with a record-shattering 137 for 36 holes over the 6,622-yard par-70 layout.

Backlund shaved a stroke off the old medalist record set by Arnold Palmer of Wake Forest in 1950 at the University of New Mexico course in Albuquerque.

Stanford won the team title with a score of 578—the total of its four lowest-scoring players. North Carolina was runner-up with 580. Louisiana State had 581 and Oklahoma A. & M. counted 582.

Little Eddie Merrins of Meridian, Miss., the big hope of Louisiana State University and the 1952 NCAA championship runner-up, fired a four-under-par 66 Tuesday—the hottest 18 holes of the tourney so far. But Monday Merrins had 75.

Early finishers for LSU were Tommy Morrow, 77-69—146. Al Stall, 82-75—157, and Bert Weaver, 79-78—157.

Nolen Richardson led the University of Georgia team with a 73-71—144. Lester Kelly shot a 75-74—149 and Frank Stevenson scored 75-77—152.

CRACKERLAND PLANNED

AGA Interclub League Slates Matches Today

By BERT PRATHER

Sixth-round matches in the Atlanta Golf Association Interclub League will be played Wednesday afternoon at Capital City Country Club, home course of the league leaders.

Though Capital City will be minus the services of Harvie Ward, its team of Sonny Ellis, Gordon Clay, Bob Sulzer, Bobby Marsden, Jim Clay and Carling Dinkler Jr., will be heavily favored to head the 13-club field for the sixth straight time.

Ward underwent a mastoid operation Tuesday at Duke University Hospital, Durham, N. C. Harvie, who had a double mastoid operation as a youngster, has been suffering for some time with recurrence of the old trouble and decided to have it corrected after it acted up in England and again at the U. S. Open in Pittsburgh, Pa. He was resting fine Tuesday according to reports.

Athens Country Club has everything in ship-shape for its second annual Crackerland Invitational golf tournament Saturday and Sunday. Qualifying is now underway and will extend through Saturday morning.

Tommy Aaron, the slender Gainesville High T-quarterback, is defending champion. Dr. John A. Simpson, general tournament chairman, is expecting another strong field.

University of Florida could be a strong challenger for the National Collegiate Athletic Association golf championship in a couple of years. It is understood that National junior champion Don Bisplinghoff of Orlando; Bunk Berry, Tallahassee, and Scotty Fraser, Panama City, three of Florida's finest junior players in a decade, will cast their lot with the Gators.

These three youngsters, along with Cedartown's Doug Sanders, who has just completed his freshman year at Florida, are expected to enter the Piney Woods Invitational at Thomasville, July 2-5. Tommy Barnes of Atlanta, is defending champion.

Gordon Kirkland, Grid Coach, Dies

SALISBURY, N. C., June 23—(AP)—Gordon A. (Chubby) Kirkland, athletic director and former football coach at Catawba College, died at his home here today. He was 48.

Death was attributed to heart trouble, a malady he suffered several years ago and which forced him to relinquish his coaching duties.

Del Crandall, Pafko Lead All-Star Vote

CHICAGO, June 23—(AP)—Andy Pafko and Del Crandall of the rampaging Milwaukee Braves Monday captured top spots in the nationwide voting for the July 14 All-Star game.

Pafko, 32, moved ahead of Chicago's Hank Sauer and 23-year-old Crandall ousted Brooklyn's Roy Campanella to lead the right field and catcher voting in the National League.

The Constitution will accept ballots for the Major League All-Star teams. Address them to Major League All-Stars, Constitution Sports Dept., Atlanta. All ballots will be forwarded to Chicago for inclusion in the national balloting.

Pafko, sidelined by injury, has collected 106,272 votes to top Sauer's 101,741 by 4,531. Crandall is 3,035 votes ahead of Campanella, 104,208 to 101,173.

The top vote-getters are Mickey Mantle, New York center fielder, in the American League, with 128,568 votes, and second sacker Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cards in the National with 120,174.

Line Bucking Brain

Legislator Wants Car Tax Scrapped, Tag Cost Boost

By ALBERT RILEY

A Georgia legislator recommended Tuesday that property taxes on automobiles be abolished and the price of automobile tags be increased to offset the ad valorem tax loss.

Under this proposal by Rep. Julian Sipple of Chatham County, the state would collect a flat fee on the license tags and make rebates to the counties and cities in which the automobiles are registered.

Sipple's suggestion was made at a meeting here of a state legislative committee seeking to tighten enforcement of Georgia's motor vehicle registration and taxation laws.

Rep. George Smith II of Emanuel County, speaker pro-tem of the House, said Sipple's plan would require a constitutional amendment.

COMMITTEE AGREEMENTS

The committee reached agreement on these two main points:

1. When an automobile owner buys a license tag he should be required to present receipts showing he has paid his city and county property taxes on the car for the preceding year.

2. The state should switch to the use of "permanent" license tags that would remain with the automobile and be changed from year to year only by the use of a small metal insert showing the number of the year.

AIM AT TAX RELIEF

Sen. G. Everett Millican of Atlanta said one of the main objestives of the committee is to give law abiding taxpayers some tax relief while increasing over all revenue.

"The automobile owner who now pays his taxes can get relief only when those who are not paying their taxes are made to pay them," Millican said.

Smith agreed with Millican that if automobile taxes can be reduced and every owner made to pay, the individual taxpayers would benefit and the cities and counties would collect more money.

Sen. Herbert Moon of Americus indicated agreement with Sipple that it might be wise to abolish all ad valorem taxes on automobiles and substitute other means of taxing them.

STUDYING BILL

The committee, which also includes Lt. Gov. Marvin Griffin and Rep. Jere C. Ayers of Madison County, is studying a House-approved bill to require payment of property taxes before issuance of license tags. Griffin said a substitute bill probably will have to be drafted for the bill now pending in the Senate.

At one point during the discussion, Millican suggested a procedure whereby the property taxes would actually be paid to the state at the same time the tag is bought, with the state then returning the collected taxes to the counties and cities.

The committee also is studying the feasibility of establishing a uniform scale of assessment of automobile values throughout the state's 159 counties.

The group, which also is studying motor vehicle tax procedures in other states, will meet again in September to complete their recommendations to the November Legislature.

Inspection Set For Soap Box Derby Entries

Soap Box Derby builders Wednesday will add the final touches to their racers, in preparation for inspection Thursday.

H. Len DeFoor, derby director, said inspections, which determine safety and construction standards, will begin at 8 a. m. in the Henry Grady High School gymnasium on 10th Street, and will last until 5 p. m. both Thursday and Friday.

Racers must be assembled complete with wheels, DeFoor said. All racers will remain at the track after the examination in safe storage places.

Sponsors' names will be placed on the cars during inspection and every boy will be given his official Soap Box Derby outfit—racing helmet and T-shirt.

Saturday's elimination races begin at 9 a. m. and championship races at 2 p. m. The track this year is on 10th Street, N. E., near Henry Grady High School.

Georgia Reports To AAUW

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 23—(AP)—Georgia's chapter of the American Association of University Women are putting forth their best efforts this year in making life more livable in booming defense areas of the state.

A report on activities of the AAUW in this field was made today to the national AAUW convention here by Mrs. S. Milton Murray of Augusta. Mrs. Murray is president of the Georgia group.

H-BOMB AREA

Following a survey of family needs in the Savannah River H-Bomb project area, Mrs. Murray said, the AAUW started positive steps toward improving living conditions in the area.

First, they met with responsible groups in an effort to meet educational needs of the area, she continued, then they went to work on raising standards for child care centers, organizing study groups in the arts and crafts, organizing international relations clubs and pointing out health needs for the area.

AUGUSTA BRANCH

A new branch of the AAUW has been organized in Augusta, Mrs. Murray said, to help meet the needs of the atomic energy project area.

Another problem has grown from the fact that most of the project workers have brought their families to the area, thus adding to congested living conditions.

By initiating community activity in heavily populated defense areas such as this, Mrs. Murray said the AAUW hopes to make a contribution towards better family living.

Grandma's Market Basket Inspires Room Accessories

CHICAGO, June 23—(INS)—The basket that grandma once took to market is now staying home to provide a stylish room accessory for the modern housewife.

Baskets in every size and shape—from great big scoop chairs to little bonbon holders—were used by almost every high-fashion furniture display at the Chicago summer furniture market.

Several companies showed versions of the basket scoop chair. A typical one designed by John Risley—to sell for around $30—was just a big round basket of rattan suspended six inches off the floor in a wrought iron frame.

There were baskets masquerading as lamp bases or lamp shades, planter baskets for flower pots, baskets under desks as waste-paper containers—and basket-weave insets of cane or rattan as panels or tops to tables and cabinets.

Most of these baskets were of natural color rush. But some were dyed or painted vivid red, blue or white and black.

The great advantage of using baskets as accessories is the fact that they are cheap, can be washed clean if necessary, and hold their shape under most blows.

GOOD PRICES

Vivid color from Italy and Spain, solid comfort as Mrs. American Homemaker wants it and 1952 prices marked the miles of furniture displays unveiled at the Chicago summer furniture market.

Some 18,000 buyers jamming the American Furniture Mart and the merchandise mart for the start of the semi-annual 11-day show inspected designs combining the best international ideas.

BRILLIANT HUES

Colors ranging from brilliant peacock blue to sunburst orange dominated the market displays. Instead of the usual muted greens and dull browns and grays, colors for next season are tropical. Blue made a comeback in every vivid tint from turquoise to the bluish-purple of wine grapes. Orange from tangerine to pumpkin, yellow and shiny white completed the "Mediterranean" story.

Under the brilliant upholstery and accessories was the see-through look copied from Scandinavian designers. Thin table and chair legs, open room dividers and bookcases, and a wide use of metal mesh and glass shelves and table tops contributed to the "open-air" feeling.

Davises Journey To Coast

Dr. Marvin L. Davis and his bride, the former Ellen Quarterman, are en route by motor to California today, following their marriage which was solemnized Tuesday evening at the Winship Chapel of the First Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Harry Fifield officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception given at the Capital City Country Club by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Quarterman. Dr. Davis is the son of Mrs. L. A. Davis of South Pasadena, Cal., formerly of Macon.

Mr. Quarterman gave his daughter in marriage. She wore the wedding gown and illusion veil worn by Mrs. Arthur Laws, the former Charlotte Hoffman, at her wedding. The lovely gown combined a Chantilly lace bodice with a nylon tulle skirt fashioned over blush satin. The veil cascaded from a Juliet cap of matching lace embroidered in seed pearls. The bride carried a bouquet of white orchids, pale pink tuberoses and fleurs d'amour.

Miss Fritzi Yundt was maid of honor for the bride, and Mrs. McChesney Jeffries was matron of honor.

Hendley Napier of Macon served as best man, and usher-groomsmen were Keith Quarterman Jr., Dr. David McKee, Dr. Richard Blumberg, and Dr. John Sessions of Chapel Hill, N. C.

Mrs. Lloyd Jones and Mrs. William Fulton kept the bride's book at the reception.

Dr. Davis and his bride will stop at Colorado Springs and other resorts en route to Pasadena where the former is a well-known pediatrician.

GFWC Meet Under Way In Athens

ATHENS, June 23—(AP)—"The future success of the United Nations rests with American women," a high official of the General Federation of Women's Clubs said tonight.

Speaking at the annual institute of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Theodore S. Chapman declared "the United Nations will succeed only as people everywhere, and Americans particularly, know about it and develop an informed public opinion about it."

CORRECT MISTAKES

Such opinion is developed "not in newspapers, radio nor television stations, but around the dinner table where women preside," said the speaker from Jerseyville, Ill., who is first vice-president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

She urged the 75 delegates to the institute to help correct what she described as misinformation about the United Nations.

In another address today, Mrs. Chapman recounted some of the history of General Federation of Women's Clubs. "There are eleven million members of the fifteen thousand women's clubs throughout the world," she said.

30,000 IN JAPAN

"About half of these are Americans and the rest are in 43 other nationalities," Mrs. Chapman added. "Clubs range in size from 15 members upward. The largest single club with a membership of 30,000 is in Japan," she said.

Mrs. Chapman declared that a woman's club, in order to justify its existence, must be both a study group and a civic improvement organization.

"The objectives of all clubs," she added, "are adult education and community betterment."

She said the federation had a great deal of influence in the passage of the Pure Food and Drug Act, and had long advocated establishment of the new federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

'Profession Is Tops,' Emory Nurse Says

By DOTTY LUNDY

"I can't remember when I didn't want to be a nurse," declares Betty Tigner, winter quarter Emory graduate, now on women's surgery duty at Emory University Hospital. "I may be prejudiced, but I think my profession is tops.

"I wouldn't advise any high school graduate to go into nursing, however, unless they love the work," she continues.

(One in a Series)

After graduating from Druid Hills High, tall, blonde Betty had a year of academic work at St. Mary's College in North Carolina, then another at Emory. Her professional training took two and a half years which qualified her for a B.S. degree in nursing besides a registered nurse certificate.

Betty thinks she will stay with general duty nursing awhile, although she may specialize in the future. Right now she's working on the night shift from 3 to 11 p. m. five days a week, with every other week end off.

Her duties consist of caring for the women patients before and after they are taken to the operating room. She gives shots, takes temperatures, feeds her patients and in general keeps them as comfortable as possible. Betty is convinced she is in the phase of nursing where she can do the most good.

Betty started on general duty after graduation on the day shift from 7 a. m. to 11 p. m. at $9.50 per day. Since then she has gotten a raise. Nurses work on rotating shifts and no girl keeps the same hours more than a few weeks.

MRS. VIRGINIA MOORE

Students Eat With Eyes, Says Expert

By JEANNE HIGGINS

That students eat with their eyes as well as their mouths, is a strong opinion of Virginia Moore, food consultant for the Southern Division of Armour and Company, who is in Georgia for the annual school lunch workshop being held this week on the University of Georgia campus in Athens.

Mrs. Moore, whose home and headquarters is in Birmingham, Ala., has as her theme for the workshop demonstrations, "Meats for School Lunches."

Meat garnishes, particularly edible ones, are emphasized in importance for appearance by this home economist who says her favorite adornment for ham is corn on the cob and tomato wedges.

"Meats are seasonable like fruits and vegetables," according to our visiting expert, "and no cuts are tough if cooked properly."

Late summer is the time for mature hens, because the spring chickens will be grown up. And it will literally rain beef this fall. These were a couple of hints dropped by Mrs. Moore.

Does Mrs. Moore cook? "Why, when I'm home, and the mood strikes me, I could cook for a month at a time," she exclaimed.

Brightens More Than Corner

For some years now Eunice Ginn Adams, who writes a column for the Cartersville Tribune-News, has been a friend of mine. She is one of those sweet-faced women who married a preacher, shared and believed in his work but managed withal to keep a life of humble service from effacing her own native spunk and ginger.

Sixty years old, Eunice took up newspapering after her beloved "Preacher," the Rev. Walter S. Adams, retired. They moved back to her native Cartersville, settled themselves in a small, neat house out on the edge of town and prepared to live a quiet garden-and-books kind of existence.

Of course, you know what happened. Churches were constantly calling on "Preacher" to supply for absent or ailing pastors. The newspaper could use Eunice's wit and energy. Clubs, civic groups and church and charity organizations needed them.

So they are two of the busiest people in Georgia. The other day Bill Statham, of the Cartersville Tribune-News staff, surprised Eunice by guesting a column for her and I think you might like what he wrote.

Marveling at her energy, he said: "If you could work with her in a newsroom, trying desperately to meet the daily deadline, and see her slinging telephones, copy, typewriters and 17 and 24 and 30-point headlines around like a woman mixing up a batch of stuff to bake a cake, you would wonder.

"This human machine can put in a week's work and still find time for a dozen speaking or teaching engagements, in addition to her housework. You wonder if she ever finds time to stop, if she can ever be still.

"Yes, she finds time to pray. She still can manage to set aside a daily period to approach her God, as a child, and ask guidance and give thanks. She and Preacher have lived through many wonderful experiences together and that's not all, they anticipate many, many more. . . . Lucky Preacher! To have had all those glorious years with such a wonderful, charming lady!"

Of course, everybody who knows Mrs. Adams knows that she is convinced the shoe is on the other foot. She is the luckiest of women to have had Preacher. His years of serving Methodist churches in little towns and country places all over Georgia have enriched her life immeasurably, broadening her understanding and quickening her humor.

To her Preacher is an unfailing source of inspiration but that doesn't keep her from enjoying thoroughly his human foibles. His running battle with the birds in his garden provides her—and her readers—with much merriment.

Preacher, being a Methodist and therefore a veteran of the fried chicken circuit, is evidently a man who likes a succulent bird on the table better than in the garden any day. When he was preaching in middle Georgia he kept a bird dog and many a quail brightened the Adams' board during the hunting season.

But he can't eat robins, jaybirds and starlings. On the contrary, they are eating him out of house and home in his strawberry beds. He can't kill them either, although he keeps an air rifle handy to frighten them.

"So far," chuckles Mrs. Adams, "the fellows with the full stomach and wings have been victorious."

Recognize Appetite Differences

By IDA JEAN KAIN

No overweight really wants to go beyond the pleasingly plump pound. Admittedly, fat is a burden that pads age.

Yet there is only one direct cause of overweight and that is overeating. Nothing can make fat—just excess food. But many overweights protest they are hungry all the time . . . and it's difficult for them to understand that they could possibly be overeating when they still feel hungry.

The fact to recognize is that there is a difference between normal hunger, hidden hunger and acquired appetite. Hunger is a physical need whereas appetite is in large part the remembrance of the pleasure of eating which stimulates a desire for food. Appetite is influenced by many things, including the five senses.

For example, when you pass a bakery shop, the aroma of freshly baked goods wafting under your nostrils draws like a magnet at any time of day, even after a hearty lunch.

When the stimulation of the senses is allowed to lead you into the practice of overeating . . . that habit reacts on the physical side by stretching the food capacity. The stomach becomes accustomed to receiving a certain quantity of food and it and you feel unsatisfied with less.

But there's still another factor . . . hidden hunger. A constant nagging desires for food may be a sign of poor nourishment in spite of overweight. When a diet is top-heavy in carbohydrates and slights the protective foods, the tissues may be starved for some particular essential. And the real hunger is not for more of the same foods you've been eating but for the missing protective nutrients.

Recognize that the craving to keep on eating after you've had enough to satisfy physical hunger is either false appetite or a symptom of malnutrition. In either case, it's a protective diet, limiting the quantity of food while improving the quality of the meals, which will turn the trick.

MARY HAWORTH

Wife Offers To Leave; Husband Reeks Remorse

DEAR MARY HAYWORTH: My wife has reached the end of her rope, after 15 years' marriage to me. I held two jobs much of this time, working 65 to 70 hours a week, and was tired and often short tempered with her, and left her alone a lot.

When I had a little time off, I went fishing with the boys or played cards with them at a friend's house.

Recently she asked me if I wanted her to leave, since obviously I didn't care anything for her. It came like a bolt from the blue. I hadn't realized I had been killing something inside her. I don't know what I would do without her.

I now attend church, as I didn't before; help with the housework and spend all my spare time with my family. Edith has forgiven the past and is staying on but she has changed, and I am terribly unhappy.

I am so remorseful for having caused her so many heartaches and tears, and have asked her time and again why she let me go on so long, as I was too ignorant to know what I was doing. I am heartsick and would do anything to have her care as she did previously.

Should I apply for psychiatric help or talk to my pastor about my dilemma? Your suggestions will be greatly appreciated.

J. B.

DEAR J. B.: Your hope in the situation consists in Edith's disposition to stay on. In sharing family life, you have opportunity to formulate habits of real companionship—a pattern which may gradually revive her damaged love.

Emotion follows action, and Edith was denied your society and co-operation for so long that she became conditioned to self-sufficiency. But in so doing, she became increasingly resentful, an emotion which, in itself, did as much to "kill something inside her" as did your churlish neglect of her.

Now you face the necessity of reversing this negative trend, as cannot be done in a burst of contrition. To succeed, you must apply yourself quietly to the life-time proposition of proving your change of heart. This is real atonement.

In relationship there can be no "going back" to repair past mistakes. Restitution starts in doing right today. M. H.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dan Gerber (Mother of 5)

Touring this summer? If you've a small baby, maybe you'd enjoy seeing just how baby foods are made. The welcome mat is always out at Gerber's three plants — Fremont, Michigan; Oakland, California; Rochester, New York. Regular guided tours help you "see all."

* * *

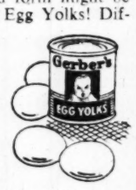
Specialists who make baby foods and nothing else — the folks at Gerber's — take the utmost care with Gerber's Cereals to please doctors, babies, mothers! They're nutritious . . . enriched with B-vitamins, iron, and calcium so important to your rapidly growing baby. They're appealing in texture and taste — with the four pleasant individual flavors: Cereal Food, Rice, Barley, Oatmeal. Gerber's Cereals are thoroughly pre-cooked. You simply add milk or whatever liquid your doctor prefers.

* * *

Bubble trouble? Some babies take longer to "bubble" than others. Some need to be bubbled two or three times during a feeding. Some need different positions: over shoulder, propped up in sitting position, or put on their tummies.

* * *

First food in solid form might be Gerber's Strained Egg Yolks! Different and delicious! They have a creamy, custard-like consistency . . . a tasty fresh-egg flavor. Rich in iron, protein, Vitamin A. Laboratory tested for purity, too. You can serve them just "as is," or mix them with milk, formula, or solid food. (Toddlers will love an egg nog made with Gerber's Egg Yolks.)



* * *

New baby in the house doesn't call for complete absence of noise. Except for sounds too sharp or close, baby will probably adjust readily to ordinary household noises.

end with the means and brought the subject of furnishing a loan closet before the Fulton County Medical Auxiliary.

Already the doctors' wives have provided sheets, pillowcases towels, washcloths and pajamas, and they hope to add a wheelchair soon according to Mrs. Charles Rieser, chairman of the loan closet committee.

Although the supplies already furnished were bought with a budget surplus from last year, the auxiliary is now planning to provide more supplies for the visiting nurses. Mrs. Rieser and Mrs. E. A. Bancker, president of the Fulton County Medical Association Auxiliary, say they are not yet ready to divulge their plans.

"We have told the visiting nurses to call us whenever they need anything," Mrs. Rieser said.

Your Stars, Today

DAILY GUIDE — There are some decisions to be made by a great many people this week and on into next month. Yesterday's birthday list mentioned those most likely to have to face up to reality soon. In general, there is an optimistic note in the air, which if responded to without over-ambition, could result in a fine sense of humor brought to bear on current problems. Seeing the humor in a situation does not mean taking it lightly or being frivilous. Only man has the gift of humor because he can reason. Instead of fear, which might be the first reaction, relax. A good laugh is a wonderful "relaxer."

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, CANCER! Most of the greater changes in your life are behind you, but some extra tension and unexpected events can come in the next few weeks. Keep yourself relaxed and ready to adjust to change of schedule. This isn't a routine period for you. Stricter responsibilities in the home and complications through people in your business or through another person, maybe a partner or mate, could come now. The increased activity of this month should be used to start some new enterprise, to push your ambitions, but not to stir up temperamental outbursts.

LOST 20 POUNDS WEARS DRESS SIZES SMALLER BROOKLET LADY USES ANARO

"When I first started taking Anaro Concentrate for reducing I weighed 195 lbs. Now I have lost 20 lbs. and only need to lose 20 more. I recommend Anaro to all those suffering from overweight." So writes Mrs. H. O. Waters of Brooklet, Ga.

It's amazing how quickly you can lose unsightly fat at home. Obtain liquid ANARO at your druggist, mix with grapefruit juice as directed and take two tablespoonfuls twice a day. That's all there is to it. If you do not lose weight with the very first bottle just return it to the maker for your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while reducing with ANARO.

DOCTORS' TESTS PROVE:

Yes, in scientific clinical tests by doctors among regular laxative users, 7 out of every 10 who made a choice preferred Espotabs tablets . . . find they are more effective, give more natural action . . . and are so easy to take.

USED IN DOCTORS' PRESCRIPTIONS

The exclusive Espotabs formulation contains an amazingly effective laxative ingredient widely used in doctors' prescriptions, one which works mainly in the large intestine where most needed. In clinical tests patients compared Espotabs with two well known leading laxatives containing the same superior laxative ingredient, 7 out of 10 preferred Espotabs*. Read why they chose Espotabs.

ESPOTABS PRAISED BECAUSE THEY:

1. Are more effective.
2. Give more natural, more comfortable action.
3. Give soft, easy movements — no rush.
4. Contain no rough bulk to irritate hemorrhoids or sensitive intestinal membranes.
5. Are easy and pleasant to take.

No matter what laxative you now use, you owe it to yourself to try Espotabs, the laxative preferred by 7 out of 10 in these scientific tests. Get Espotabs at your druggist — only 25¢.

*Preferred by more than 8 out of 10 over one laxative and more than 6 out of 10 over the other.

Hidden Pressures Held Key to Economy Growth

By ALEX JOINER

Arno H. Johnson is director of research at J. Walter Thompson Co. and he is fostering a bullish views of the economy that he is enjoying first-rate play in the nation's business press.

He sees "powerful but hidden" pressures for expansion building up in the economy, opportunities that are not being grasped by present-day executives who lived through the great depression.

He is scoring the thinking of today's 50-60 year old "key" executives, the junior executives of 26 to 36 at the time of the stock market crash in 1929.

For the following 11 years of their most impressionistic business experience, Johnson says, they struggled through depression, "mature economy" and defeatism . . . and many must look upon this as the "normal" to which we must return after the "abnormal" period of production for war or defense.

Actually, Johnson points out cheerfully, we are living in a dynamic economy where changes have been rapid and where the opportunities for further expansion in the next few years are so great as almost to stagger the imagination.

Our total productive ability is such that as a nation we could enjoy a third higher standard of living within the next five years if we did no more than produce at the same per capita rate that we actually reached during the war peak of 1944.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VanDELLEN

Learn Resuscitation And Learn To Swim

Learning to stay atloat or to swim a few strokes may make the difference between life and death.

Of all my acquaintances, only one has given artifical respiration to save the life of a swimmer. According to William Nelson, the hero in this case, it took him 35 minutes to revive the victim and he has always been thankful that he was taught this life saving procedure.

He used the Schafer prone pressure method and was surprised when I informed him recently that his favorite plan had been discarded as the official life saving technique and replaced by the Holger Nielsen push-pull method which was found to be more than twice as efficient.

It consists of two phases: the pull (arm-lift) and the push (back-pressure). The victim is placed face down with the arms overhead and the elbows bent so that one hand rests on the other.

The forehead is placed on the hands with the head turned slightly to one side. The operator does not straddle or kneel at the side of the victim as with the Schafer method. Instead, he kneels in front of the victim, with one knee touching the head of the patient.

To stimulate respiration, the operator places his hands beneath the arms of the subject just above the elbows. Then, without letting go, he draws the arms upward and toward him as he rocks backward. At the completion of the arm-lift the second, or expiratory, stage begins. The operator releases his grip and moves the hands to the mid-back, just below the shoulder blades. With the fingers spread and the thumbs close to the spine, pressure is applied vertically until firm resistance is met. Pressure is released and, after a momentary pause, the cycle is repeated.

The arms of the operator are kept straight during both phases. In addition, his strength is conserved if he utilizes his back muscles for lifting and pushing.

Oil Issues Spur Stocks In New Rise

Special to The Atlanta Constitution

NEW YORK, June 23—Stock prices continued to forge ahead today, spurred by strong demand for petroleum and rail issues. Less than 200,000 shares of stock changed hands in the first hour of trading on the New York Stock Exchange and the ticker moved slowly right up until 3 o'clock. But a burst of business in the final 30 minutes of trading helped lift sales for the day to 1,080,000 shares. On Monday volume amounted to 1,030,000 shares.

The market also was slightly broader and out of the 1,047 issues dealt in 530 ended ahead on the day, 243 declined and 274 remained unchanged. But while five issues reached new highs for the year, 61 plunged to new lows.

Prices reached their best levels of the session in the final 30 minutes of trading with New York Central leading the tape on transactions reaching 5,000 shares at a time.

KNOW YOUR GEORGIA — By C. J. Holleran

'Good Old Mountain Music'

When the sturdy Scotch and Irish settlers pushed into the North Georgia mountains to colonize that Indian-infested area, they had neither the time nor the inclination to sing or make merry. After they had gained a foothold, however, the opportunity to relax a bit brought the desire for entertainment. Sheet music and musical instruments were practically non-existent; so they turned to the creation of vocal folk songs. Not realizing what they were doing to future generations, these good people laid the foundation for what we know as "hill-billy" tunes. The preachers violently denounced these ballads as "devil ditties," but to no avail. About this time one of early Georgia's most intriguing characters appeared on the scene. Known as the wandering "music maker," he was a welcome guest in every mountain home. The fact that he could sing the old songs endeared him to the music-starved pioneers, and his ability to compose new ballads and teach them orally was considered nothing short of genius. The subjects were always a local event, such as a feud, a killing or a love affair. These tunes were handed down vocally for many years and innumerable verses were added. Some of them today have more than one hundred stanzas.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 spade	2 hearts	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Six of diamonds.

There are few partners who test one's patience more than the one who refuses to lead the suit which you have bid. Throwing caution to the wind, you may have made an overcall at the risk of going deeply into debt should the opposition double. You may have taken this dangerous step because it was your firm belief that the best interests of the partnership would be served by an opening lead of that suit. Little wonder then that you are chagrined when partner takes matters into his own hand and leads some brokendown suit headed by the jack.

It is not contended that the lead of partner's suit is a mandatory procedure. Everyone should be permitted the exercise of his own discretion, but partner's wishes should not be ignored on a mere whim.

North's opening bid of one club does not have the sanction of this department, and he found the rebid anything but pleasant. A raise of partner's suit to three would, of course, have been a distinct exaggeration of his values. So he made the rebid which was least likely to excite partner, namely three clubs. South, convinced that a minor suit game was not available, chose to gamble that partner had an honor in spades by calling three no trump, with a mental reservation against sticking it out should he be greeted with a double.

Everything passed off calmly, and that put the lead up to West. It is the belief that the opponents had spades well stopped, he negotiated a surprise attack with the diamond six. East won with the king, returned the suit, and the defense cashed five diamond tricks and two spades, defeating the contract three tricks.

West was rather set up with himself and looked to East for approbation, which to his disappointment was not forthcoming from his philosophic partner. "Just pure unadulterated luck," was East's comment.

Teddy Roosevelt Dramatized

A dramatic episode in the life of young Theodore Roosevelt which helped forge his great determination and courage will be highlighted in the Cavalcade of America dramatization Wednesday night on WSB-TV.

The play, "The Tenderfoot," tells how Roosevelt, despondent after the death on the same day of his mother and his wife decided to retire to his Western ranch. Events which changed his mind provide the motivation for the TV drama.

Spun-Sugar Clothes
Bring Outraged Cry

By ROBERT SYLVESTER
Finch-Hitting for Ed Sullivan
NEW YORK, June 23—Where can a guy buy some summer clothes made out of cloth and not made out of spun sugar, coal tar, acetate and other aif-repellant plastics? . . . I'm getting tired of seeing a Jaguar every time I look down. . . . Maybe Joyce Bryant, coming into the Copa, can really sing. At least, she doesn't bill herself as "Another Lena Horne."

The Picture of Dorian Grey; Henry Youngman watching any other comedian. . . . Erroll Garner's "extended play" record of "Caravan" is probably his best piano pitch yet. And he usually throws strikes.

The only time I ever saw Geraldine Page she was the most over-manned and aggravating actress within memory. . . . Reports from Russia have it that the hepcats over there like the old style phonograph records. More revolutions per minute.

Jeri Sullivan changed her name to Jenny Barrett and upped the hit record "He Loves Me." Eve Young changed to Karen Chandler and scored with the "Hold Me, Thrill Me" record. All four gals sing real good, too.

Modern Way to Control Roaches, Ants

Scientists Discover New, Easy Way to Kill Crawling Insects

ROACHES and ants, pests that they are, are usually found near food and cooking utensils where you should not use bombs or sprays. And no need to either, when you can brush Johnston's NO-ROACH just where you want it, around cabinets and sink or wherever these bugs are found, without having to move dishes or pots and pans.

Effective for Months

Johnston's NO-ROACH is colorless, odorless, and stainless. Insects that walk across the invisible coating become paralyzed and die within three hours. Then the coating remains effective for months to prevent re-infestation and to keep your home free of crawling insects all season long.

Contains Chlordane

If you brush Johnston's NO-ROACH across window sills and door sills, ants will not cross the invisible coating. You may also control silverfish, waterbugs, household spiders and any other crawling insects with NO-ROACH.

One important point to remember: NO-ROACH is a unique formula, made only by Johnston. It cannot be duplicated. For truly effective control, use genuine Johnston's NO-ROACH. 8 oz. 89¢; pt. $1.69; qt. $2.98.

The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years

gives you extra mileage, too

TODAY it is possible for you to enjoy the effect of an engine tune-up simply by changing from your present brand of gasoline to Shell Premium with TCP! You'll feel that increase in power by the time you've finished the second tankful, and as long as you continue to use Shell Premium with TCP.

Here's why. The biggest cause of both fuel and power loss affecting the majority of cars on the road today has been overcome.

In the average car, certain combustion by-products are constantly accumulating both on spark plugs and in combustion chambers. These deposits actually "short-circuit" the spark plugs and cause pre-ignition of the fuel-air mixture in the combustion chamber—especially when you accelerate, when you climb a hill, when you tour the open highway.

To overcome the power-wasting, fuel-wasting effect of these deposits, Shell Research developed a fuel additive—TCP. This remarkable ingredient, now blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, actually renders these deposits harmless. Your spark plugs spark as they should, combustion chamber pre-ignition is controlled and your engine takes on new life.

*Patent applied for

All cars benefit

Shell Premium with TCP is essential if you have a car with one of the new high-compression engines and want it to keep on delivering its original power for the normal life of your spark plugs. But even if you drive an older car with 30,000 or more miles on the speedometer, Shell Premium with TCP will "bring back" much of the performance you're missing.

Now in Atlanta Metropolitan Area

but only at your Shell Dealer's

TCP (a Shell Trademark) was originally developed by Shell Research for aviation fuels and until now has been largely restricted to military aircraft.

Today, Shell Premium with TCP is available in this area, but only at Shell Dealer Stations.

YOUNGSTERS AT GLENLAKE

Two Decatur-DeKalb YMCA day camps opened this week for the first of three two-week periods. Both units, at Glenlake Park in Decatur and Fernbank Forest in Druid Hills, had a capacity registration of about 100 boys. At Glenlake, left, above, Camp Director E. E. Whitsett instructs Johnny Bozman, front, and Mickey Yarborough and Bobby Tabor in lanyard weaving. In the second picture, Willard Clark watches Reese Bowen paint a model plane he made. Third, Counselor Dick England tells a rest period story to his camp group, the "Apaches." Left to right are Tommy Garner, Gus Parnell, Sterling Green, England, Monty Clark, Jimmy Deadwyler and David Marotte. Monty and David lose the plot of the story as they doze. In the fourth picture, Larry Jackson tricks Bobby Esa as the former attempts to get a drink of water. Thundershowers Tuesday washed away most of a dam another "Indian group" built across a creek at Glenlake. Other activities at the camp include swimming, team games and playing on swings and seesaws. The youngsters stay all day, eating a picnic lunch at noon.

DeKalb Jail Expansion Will Add 'Guest' Rooms

The scheduled expansion of the DeKalb County jail holds a partial solution to the jailers' knotty housekeeping problems, and the new arrangement actually will accommodate a larger number of "guests" than the number of cell cots to be added.

That was Sheriff Robert K. Broome's estimate of the worth of the jail expansion, which will be undertaken in conjunction with the construction of an addition to the DeKalb building.

The jail now occupies a part of the fourth floor of the county administration building. When the DeKalb annex is completed, offices that are now on the jail floor of the main building will be moved to give the jail use of the entire floor.

The additional jail space will be used for small, one and two-cot cells, Broome said, with day rooms for the units.

Greatest advantage of the smaller units will be their aid in easing the problem of separation of various types of prisoners, the sheriff said.

A breakdown of prisoner types that must be housed in separate cells, Broome said, includes white males, Negro males, white females, Negro females, juveniles and insane persons.

Jailers also separate, as far as possible, tubercular prisoners and prisoners who are considered escape hazards.

With that variety of classification, Broome said, space in larger existing cells is sometimes wasted. For example, one white female prisoner might be housed in an eight-cot cells, thus wasting space for seven other prisoners.

Housing efficiency of the jail is cut about 33 per cent because of the separation problem, Broome said. On an average, only about 50 of the 76 existing sleeping spaces are filled.

There are now eight eight-cot cells, two four-cot, two one-cot and a two-cot cell in the jail. The expansion will add eight two-cot cells and three one-cot cells.

With the smaller units, Broome said, single prisoners or small groups may be separated without wasting space in the larger cells.

After expansion, at least 75 of the 95 sleeping units probably will be utilized, the sheriff predicted, leaving a loss through separation of less than 25 per cent of housing efficiency.

The expansion will also provide rest room facilities and a drinking fountain for the jailers and an enlarged prisoner registration office.

Swimming Classes at Decatur Pools Improved This Year, Red Cross Says

The second period of Red Cross swimming instruction began in Decatur this week, as officials reported that about 250 students participated in the first period of instruction.

Swimmers are getting the same instruction during a two-week period this year that they received in a month of classes last summer, Mrs. Virginia Freeman, director of the DeKalb Chapter of the Red Cross, said.

The more efficient instruction is due to better organization in the classes, Mrs. Freeman said.

Instructors this summer began teaching immediately the course begins, since students were required to register before classes started, she explained.

In addition to the improved instruction, the Red Cross is handling a larger number of students this summer in Decatur pools, Mrs. Freeman said.

"This will probably be the best year of swimming instruction we've ever had," Mrs. Freeman said.

The first swimming and lifesaving classes were held at Glenlake Pool. Classes in progress now are held at McKoy Pool. Another period will be held at each of the pools before the summer is over, Mrs. Freeman said.

Most swimming classes two each morning, are filled, the director said, but more students are needed for the lifesaving courses beginning July 20 at McKoy.

Elizabeth Herzog is in charge of aquatic activities for the Red Cross in DeKalb. There are about 14 acting swimming instructors working in the county.

AT CARNIVAL

City, County Police Plan Kids Treat

Decatur and DeKalb County police Thursday will treat 50 youngsters from the Decatur Methodist Children's Home to an afternoon at the circus.

Arrangements for the outing have been made by Chief Luther Spinks of the Decatur Police Department and Chief Hoyt Sutton of the DeKalb County Police Department.

About 10 officers from both departments will go along with the youngsters. They will help the children on the carnival rides and buy them popcorn and pop.

DeKalb Building Bid Opening June 30

New bids on the $300,000 addition to the DeKalb Building will be opened June 30, Commissioner Scott Candler said Tuesday.

One set of bids on the project were turned down because none of them fell within the bond fund budget provided for the job. Architects revised plans of the building in an attempt to cut the cost and new bids were asked.

The DeKalb Building, located at the intersection of North McDonough St. and Herring St., houses county administrative offices and the jail.

Jamboree Scout Troop To Rehearse

Two patrols of DeKalb County scouts and their leaders will go to Bert Adams Camp Saturday for a dress rehearsal of their participation next month in the International Boy Scout Jamboree in California.

The 17 DeKalb Scouts will be joined by Scouts from Griffin and Marietta to form a Jamboree Troop, George P. Hayes, scoutmaster of the Jamboree unit, said.

Hayes said the group at Bert Adams will train in pitching new Jamboree tents, cooking Jamboree food and singing Jamboree songs. Equipment that will be taken to the California meeting will be checked and duties will be assigned during the two-day camp.

Other leaders of the DeKalb contingent are Buford Jakes, assistant scoutmaster; John Reed of Troop 163, senior patrol leader, and Bob Matthews of Troop 107, quartermaster.

The scouts will leave Atlanta for the Jamboree July 12 and will return August 4. The event will be held on the Irbin Ranch near Santa Anita, Calif.

STUDENT MEDICS CHECK LAB SLIDES

STUDY HEALTH NEEDS

Emory Students Working In Health Department

Three Emory University medical students are working this summer in the DeKalb County Health Department, learning the functions of a county public health unit.

A major part of their training there, according to Dr. T. O. Vinson, DeKalb health commissioner, will be "to learn how private medicine relates to community health."

One of the senior students is a DeKalb County man. He is Saul Vitner of 1111 Springdale Rd. Vitner's previous summer vacation work has included part-time duties at Crawford Long Hospital.

The other two students are Bill Owen and George M. Goza Jr., both of Atlanta.

The Emory medical students spend three days a week working in the health department's sick clinic, Vinson said. They work in the department's lab and assist with X-ray clinics.

Outside, Vinson said, the trio works with public health nurses and sanitary engineers throughout the country.

"The students will learn of what help a public health nurse can be to them in private practice," Vinson explained.

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT GOAL

Teachers' Study Group Takes Field Trip Today

The 36 DeKalb County teachers who this summer are studying means of improving their school system will get a look Wednesday at the system's physical facilities and the natural resources of the county.

The all-day field trip will be part of the group's work in the DeKalb corp group of the Emory University summer teachers' workshop at Druid Hills School.

The teachers, representing almost every school in the DeKalb system, are studying three phases of county school work as their special project in the workshop. Similiar DeKalb groups have been part of the Emory workshop since 1947.

Three-fourths of the teachers' tuition to the summer school is paid by the County Board of Education, according to Mrs. Alice Bohannon, DeKalb instructional supervisor who is liason between the study group and DeKalb school administration.

Next Tuesday, the teachers will leave Druid Hills School at 9 a. m. to tour the county by bus.

Dr. W. B. Baker of Emory will present a talk on plant life in the Arabia section of the county. At Lithonia, Nelson Severinghaus will talk on mineral deposits in the county and later the group will visit Stone Mountain and a granite quarry.

The group will tour Lithonia School and will visit Clarkston School and the near-completed Candler-McAfee School.

The field trip is designed both to acquaint the teachers with county resources and to give them a chance to plan the type of trip they might conduct with a class, Mrs. Bohannon explained.

The DeKalb group at Emory is the only one of several core study groups that has its goals mapped out before the workshop starts each summer. Several other DeKalb teachers participate in other units of the workshop.

Under the direction of Dr. Dwight Teel, curriculum co-ordinator of Corpus Christi, Texas, schools, the DeKalb educators are studying in three fields.

One sub-committee of the group will attempt to develop a new 12th grade English program as a part of the total public school English curriculum. Another will study classroom mental health problems and the third will study programs for the exceptional students, both retarded and advanced.

During their workshop studies, the DeKalb teachers will use books, films and recordings on their respective subjects, with a staff of outside educators as advisors.

At the end of the summer, the group will prepare a report on its findings, a copy of which will go to every DeKalb teacher when school starts.

Such things as new courses, an audio-visual program and a handbook given to all new teachers have been developed from summer workshop findings in the past, School Superintendent Jim Cherry said.

The summer study is also used as a basis for year-round in-service teacher training, he added.

Decatur Girl Selected for British Trip

Beckey Harris of 117 Wilson Dr., Decatur, will spend six weeks in the British Isles this summer as guest of the Girl Guides, an organization similar to the Girl Scouts of this country.

Miss Harris, who attended Miami University of Ohio, was selected for the trip by the national office of the Girl Scouts. She will be the only member of the organization from the Southeast to make the tour.

Scheduled to sail for Europe June 26, the Decatur girl will visit England, Ireland and Scotland before returning home.

Candler Outlines Projects For DeKalb Grand Jurors

About 60 members of the DeKalb Grand Jurors Association at their quarterly meeting heard County Commissioner Scott Candler give a forecast of public projects the county hopes to finish before 1954, including an expansion of the water system.

Candler also reviewed recent growth of the county and told the association of a need for a courthouse annex.

Roe Callaway presided at the meeting, with Judges Frank Guess and Clarence Vaughn of DeKalb Superior Court and Judge D. P. Phillips of City Court of Decatur as guests.

Also present were Georgia Beatie, president of the Fulton County Grand Jurors Association, and Lafayette Davis, chairman of the executive board of the Fulton group.

Completion of the county's current water system expansion program was emphasized in Candler's talk. The commissioner said the project is being financed mostly with $1,000,000 in water bonds voted in September, 1952. About $100,000 from water revenue certificates will be used to complete the expansion financing, he added.

The water system expansion includes installation of several new north-south mains, expansion of the water works plant and construction of a new storage and pressure tank. Another tank will be built in the Avondale area when funds are available, the commissioner said.

About one-third of the $1,000,000 roads improvement program approved by voters last fall has been completed, Candler told the group. The rest of the program should be completed by the end of the year, he added.

A $100,000 addition to the Decatur-DeKalb Library, in the planning stage since September, will be constructed this year and branch libraries will be built at Doraville, Brookhaven and possibly Tucker, Candler said.

The county will participate in construction of health clinic at Lithonia and Doraville, the commissioner said, and the old county asphalt plant is being remodeled for use as a dog pound.

A $300,000 addition to the DeKalb Building should be completed before 1954, Candler said. An enlarging of the county jail is being undertaken in conjunction with that project, he added.

Candler told the jurors' group the county needs a courthouse annex that would provide space for four additional courtrooms and tax offices.

Such a building would permit the county to abandon temporary office facilities in the Trinity Building, he said.

'INDIANS'

Playgrounds Stage Hunt For Treasure

Children at Decatur's five city playgrounds will don feathers and paint Friday, and hit the war path for an Indian Treasure Hunt.

Clues hidden along the trail will lead the "redskins" to Indian mounds where the treasure will be hidden, Mrs. Rosalind Magargee, director of the Decatur Recreation Department, said.

The 125 paraders rode wagons and bicycles, scooters and carts. They dressed in a variety of costumes. Several youngsters dressed in swimming togs represented the water activities of the summer recreation program.

Playgrounds are being operated by trained personnel at McKoy, Oakhurst and Glenlake Parks and Ponce de Leon and Winnona Park Elementary Schools.

The Indian treasure hunt Friday will begin at 3:30 p. m. at Oakhurst Park and at 10 a. m. at the other playground areas.

Art Exhibit Space Seen In Library Addition

Space for art exhibits of local and more well known works will be available in the planned addition to the Decatur-DeKalb Library, Mrs. A. B. Burrus, librarian, said Tuesday.

Plans for the library are being completed, Mrs. Burrus said, and bids should be advertised for in a few weeks. The addition is being financed with part of $250,000 in bond funds approved by voters last fall.

The addition will include a large reading room that will be used by the new fine arts department of the library, Mrs. Burrus said.

Heretofore, there has been no space in the library for displays of local paintings or for traveling art exhibits, the librarian said.

The new fine arts room will have one wall especially designed for art displays. Special lighting will be used on exhibits.

The audio-visual department of the library will also be housed in the fine arts room, Mrs. Burrus said. It includes a records library and soundproof listening booths, as well as books on the arts.

"We have some fine painters right here in DeKalb," Mrs. Burrus said. "When the building is done, we can do credit to their work as well as to the many fine traveling art exhibits that will be available to us."

DeKalb Model Plane Fliers Win 3 Awards

Frances Strickland of Stone Mountain won the Walthour trophy as best beginner and was named the best girl flyer.

George Perryman of Decatur won the Lockheed trophy and was first with free flight in the open division of flyers over 21 years old. He also won the open division for rubber-powered models.

Baptist Team Tops YMCA Softball Loop

Undefeated Avondale First Baptist led the DeKalb YMCA Interchurch Softball League at the end of the third week of play.

Tied for second place in the league were Avondale Baptist and First Nazarene, both having won two and lost one game.

Other league standings include Fellowship Class of First Methodist and Ingleside Presbyterian with one win and one defeat; Scott Boulevard Baptist and Oak Grove Methodist with two losses and one win, and Emory Presbyterian with three losses.

June 25, Emory Presbyterian vs. Fellowship Class; June 26, Scott Boulevard Baptist vs. First Nazarene; June 29, Avondale First Baptist vs. Ingleside Presbyterian, and June 30, Oak Grove Methodist vs. Fellowship Class.

The Decatur YMCA Interchurch League schedule is still waiting completion of a lighting project at Ponce de Leon School, A. B. Chapman, "Y" director, said.

Fishing Clinic On Emory's Summer Slate

A fishing clinic Wednesday will mark the beginning of a program of summer community activities sponsored by the department of physical education at Emory University.

The clinic, conducted by fishing experts from a local sporting goods store will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the athletic field house on the Emory campus. Any person interested may attend without charge, T. E. McDonough, director of athletics, said.

Equipment for instruction in bait and fly-casting and spinning will be furnished at the clinic, McDonough said, but persons may bring their own tackle if they wish.

McDonough said Emory's fourth summer of activities sponsored for members of the community will include clinics on badminton and golf. George Cooper, director of intermural athletics, is in charge of the program.

The fourth annual Dixie Folk Dance School, sponsored by the department and by Emory's Community Education Service, will be held later in the summer, McDonough said.

Satterwhite To Assume Jaycee Helm

He and other leaders will take office in ceremonies during a dinner where Jaycee wives will be honor guests. The banquet will begin at 7:30 p. m. at the American Legion Clubhouse in Avondale.

Awards will be made to five DeKalb Jaycees who will be recognized for outstanding service during the past year, Weitnauer said.

Harold Salfen, president of the Atlanta Jaycees and treasurer of the Georgia Junior Chamber of Commerce, will install the officers. T. M. Forbes, executive secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers Association of Georgia, will make the principal address.

Other officers to be installed include Arthur Withers, first vice-president; Fred Forester, second vice-president; Wales Thomas, secretary; Danny Dolan, treasurer, and Roscoe Lowery, a three-year director.

A treasurer's report will be presented at the meeting, Weitnauer said.

Drive-In Dispute Continues

Atlanta City Council recently revoked the beer sale permit held by the Hickory Pit Barbecue at 3684 Roswell Rd., N. W., but residents of nearby Blackland Rd. said the action has not brought an end to the noise at the drive-in which has caused a bitter dispute in the community for several weeks.

John Merry and Roy D. Warren, spokesmen for Blackland Road residents whose homes are located behind the drive-in, said the council action has not reduced the honking of horns and noise at the drive-in which caused the resildents to seek the permit revocation.

Merry said further action against the restaurant, owned by Thomas M. Nash, will be considered at the next meeting of the Tuxedo Civic Club.

Nash declared "I have done everything the law says," in referring to the operation of the drive-in which opened for business last November.

"The property is zoned for business and there is no restriction as to what kind of business," he maintained. He said several other businesses operate on property adjacent to his.

Northside Subdivision Sought

A petition for a 130-lot subdivision at Moore's Mill Road and Peachtree Creek is scheduled to come before the Municipal Planning Board at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

The petition, seeking subdivision zoning for 130 half-acre lots has been filed by Haas & Dodd, a planning board spokesman said. The spokesman said several residents of the community complained that the smallness of the lots would devaluate property in the area.

Meanwhile, the Siano Construction Co. will go ahead with plans to develop a subdivision on Paces Ferry Road, Ralph Siano, president, declared. At its last meeting the Planning Board turned down the company's petition for 100-foot lots in the subdivision.

The property, located on the north side of Paces Ferry, east of Randall Mill Rd., is already zoned for 200-foot lots. Siano said he will build nine homes instead of 19, as proposed.

Two other Siano subdivisions, both on Howell Mill Road near the Westminster Schools site, have already been approved, he said.

Defense Sky Watch

The Atlanta Air Defense filter center at 2939 Peachtree Rd., N. E., will participate in an "Overlapping Sky Watch" with the Savannah filter center July 19.

Some 35 members of the young church will gather from 3 to 6 p. m. to pay tribute to Rev. McBride, who is leaving Skyland to become assistant pastor of a church in Tampa, Fla.

School Named For Attorney Marion Smith

The new $350,000 grammar school on Old Ivy Road, now under construction, has been named for the late Marion Smith, prominent Atlanta lawyer and former chairman of the board of regents of the University System of Georgia.

The name was selected by A. C. (Pete) Latimer, seventh ward representative on the board of education, and was approved recently by the board.

Smith was the son of former Gov. Hoke Smith and is the father of Hoke Smith, Fulton County representative in the General Assembly. An Atlanta high school is named for Governor Smith.

Marion Smith, a resident of the northside area for many years, was prominent in legal and educational circles. It was while he was chairman of the board of regents that the Atlanta Division, University of Georgia, was organized in Atlanta.

Tennis Pairings Set July 3

Play in the tournament will begin Saturday, July 4, on the courts of the Mericrycket Tennis Club, College Park.

Competition will include mens and womens divisions with singles and doubles. The womens division will be included this year for the first time in several years.

Other competitors in the mens division will be Warren Berry, Bill McNeill, Bill Cown, Lorin Martin, Fred Rowe, Pugh Smith, Jody Brown, Tommy Thompson, Don Roberts, Robert Harris, Jerry Johnson, Bobby Waits, Charlie Knecht and H. J. Allwood.

The tournament is open to all tennis players from the Tri-Cities area and from Forest Park, and Fairburn.

Hapeville Park Opens New Grills

A master grill and two smaller barbecue grills are now open to the public in Hapeville City Park, Mayor Frank Lea has announced.

The grill area is equipped with electric lights and running water and the master grill is covered and equipped with tables and benches sufficient to accommodate a sizable group, Lea said.

Reservations for the use of the grills may be made with the desk sergeant at the police station by calling CA. 1112.

The mayor stressed the fact that reservations for the use of the grill should be made as far in advance as possible to avoid conflict.

"Those making reservations will be given preference in case of conflict," Lea said.

College Park Pool Schedule Is Listed

The College Park swimming pool will be open Monday through Saturday from 10 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. and from 1:30 to 6:30 p. m. on Sundays, G. G. Germano, pool manager, has anounced.

Later in the season when the evenings are warmer, the pool will probably be kept open until 10 p. m., Germano said.

'I'LL RIDE TO WIN'

Crippled Lad To Enter His 1st Soap Box Race

By JIMMY WALKER

A 12-year-old Hapeville lad with a crutch, a lot of determination and a sleek, aluminum-covered racer will enter his first soap box derby Saturday.

Now he's a full-fledged race track novice, eager for Saturday. Laboriously applying the last elbow grease to his blue racer, he probably summed up the feelings of 79 other Tri-City soap boxers with:

BRAKES TROUBLESOME

The brakes on the carefully built racer "gave me the most trouble," Lamar said. "I couldn't get them right at first."

Brakes, wheel span, length, weight and turning distance of the wheels are rigidly controlled by derby rules, he explained.

Lamar, his biceps strong and steady from constant association with a crutch, "did all the work," his father said. "I just went after the wood and metal."

Welding the odd bits into a smooth running roadster took Lamar about three months. During the same time, dozens of other Tri-City backyards have been turned into racing pits.

Paint and iron, king pins and pinched fingers are common items to all.

SHOP INSTRUCTION

The South Fulton Boys Club ran shop courses three nights a week "to get the boys started," said Harold Culler, supervisor.

But once started on the racers they were on their own, Culler said of the 20 built by club members.

None were completed without frustration, "tearing down and putting back together," he added.

Aided by some scrap aluminum picked up at the airport, Mike Hocker, 636 E. Walker Ave., College Park, has constructed a needle-nosed car he affectionately calls "Lightning Rod."

He also will be trying out his racing form for the first time Saturday.

"These rivet holes got to be covered up," the towheaded soap boxer said. He finally decided on tape and a layer of paint.

80 RACERS ENTERED

With qualifying inspections for the racers less than 24 hours away, furious activity in the racing pit Wednesday will claim the day's schedule.

By Saturday morning 80 gleaming "derbys," 80 breathless drivers, and 80 strutting pops will head for the hill on Tenth Avenue.

Day Camp Training Opens Here

Six YMCA Day Camp officials began a city-wide leaders training program at the downtown Y headquarters this week.

The week-long session is designed to train persons who will take active parts in day camp activities in various phases of the Y programs. At least six classes will be held every day.

The program will include courses in devotional programs, handicrafts, indoor and outdoor games, swimming and water safety and singing.

A highlight of the course will be visits to the South Fulton day camps scheduled to open Wednesday. The camps are located in Hapeville and at Cowart's Lake in Ben Hill.

Tony Bove, executive secretary of the South Fulton Y branch, attended the course as well as Jess Lucas, Wesley Owens, Richard King, Joe Brooks and Gary Laurish. Tommy White, currently on duty with the Air Force ROTC, and Howard Brenner, Hapeville Camp director now taking exams at Peabody College in Nashville, will also attend the leaders school later in the month.

Principals Named at 2 New Schools

Fulton County school board this week named Miss Eva May Ivey, principal of the Riley Elementary School at Palmetto, principal of the new Parklane School in East Point.

Miss Ivey will assume her new duties later this summer. Her position at Riley school will be filled by Mrs. Ruby O. Thompson.

Mrs. Helen Preston, seventh-grade teacher at Newton Estates School, was named principal of the new Conley Hills School. Her successor has not been named.

Mrs. Mary Jones Hughie, presently principal of the Union City School, will become principal of the Church Street school. The vacancy at Union City will be filled by Sherwin Tucker.

Council Accepts Bids For East Point Pools

East Point will have two new type pools as the result of action taken by the East Point City Council Thursday.

The council accepted a bid of $133,000 from the Paddock Pool Building Co. of Atlanta for the construction of pools on Spring Ave. and Randall St.

The Spring Ave. pool will be for white use and the Randall pool for Negroes.

Construction of the pools will begin immediately, Mayor Al Roberts said Tuesday, and will probably be completed in four months.

East Point has been without swimming pools for three years, even since Fulton County Health authorities declined to pass the city pools as sanitary.

The proposed pools will be of a new type, according to Harry Krueger, president of Paddock.

The Spring Ave. pool will be 150 feet long, 75 feet wide and hold 450,000 gallons of water. Randall St. pool will be 75 feet lang and 35 feet wide. Its capacity will be 110,000 gallons.

The new pools will feature curved sides and walls with no corners to collect dirt, Krueger explained.

He said the pools will never have to be drained and will have an aereation system to cool the water. Both will have an automatic "skimmer" which skims off the top of the pools every day and removes foreign objects from the pools.

The walls will be of concrete and the general shape of the pools will be an inverted dome.

The entire pool will be plastered with a patent substance called Marcite. This coating imparts a lifetime white finish which never needs painting, Kreuger said.

Sixteen 1,000-watt underwater lights will be installed in the Spring Ave. pool.

Each pool will have a separate wading place for children and will have two fiberglass diving boards.

In other action the council rejected bids on bath house construction and lighting and requested the submission of new bids.

The examination will be given at a later date and will be announced.

Mrs. Ted Yon Elected by Music Club

Mrs. Ted H. Yon, a leader in the College Park Music Club during the past few years, has been elected president of the organization.

Following the election and installation services Mrs. Yon entertained members of the executive committee at her home where a special session was held to discuss plans for the coming year.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Edward Bryson, first vice-president; Mrs. F. J. Schwaemmle, second vice-president; Mrs. Jerry Evans, third vice-president; Mrs. Jack Collier, recording secretary; Mrs. H. W. Graves, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. E. Perkins, treasurer; Mrs. H. Teen Club Plans Summer Slates At Hapeville

Saturday night programs will be continued on a limited scale during the summer by the Teen Club of the Hapeville Recreation Center. Meetings will be held on the second and fourth Saturday of each month during June, July and August, Sonny Tolar, club president, said.

Mrs. G. B. Pearson has been appointed chairman of the Hapeville Junior Service League's Teen-age Committee to supervise the Teen Club programs.

The club wound up its winter season activities with a hayride to Mooney's Lake last Saturday night.

Hapeville Queens Win at Softball

Hapeville's Queens swamped the Georgia Baptist Home Lassies by a score of 27-9 in a softball tilt Friday night.

Big guns for the Queens were Nora Bevil with four hits, Ann Barrow and Mary Jarvis each got three out of four and Joan Bevil hit a triple, the longest blow of the game.

The Queens, coached by Johnny Jarvis, are looking for games on Friday nights. Any team interested in playing the Queens can call the Hapeville Recreation Department at CA. 8563 or Coach Jarvis at FA. 1027.

Pen Chaplain to Talk

Chaplain Parks Tucker, prison chaplain at the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, will be guest speaker at a "Ladies' Night" meeting of the College Park Methodist Church Thursday. Jake Brown, recently returned from Korea, will be featured soloist in the musical portion of the program.

WorkBegins On Federal Warehouse

Construction of a new federal warehouse on Lawrence Ave., East Point, began recently with the breaking of ground by Mayor Al Roberts.

The new warehouse, of approximately 400,000 square feet, will be use to house storage and service distribution center for common use items for the General Services Administration.

The annual rental of the warehouse will be about $218,000 on a five-year lease with renewal option, Hugh K. Mahon, general counsel of the Services Administration, said Tuesday.

"With the occupancy of this new warehouse all of General Services warehousing facilities will be located together. At the present time warehousing is scattered in various sections of the city. This new warehouse will eliminate the traffic problem," Mahon said.

General Services does a volume purchase business of about $10,000,000 annually, said Mahon. The agency supplies all the other government agencies in the southeast.

The building is being constructed by General Warehouse Inc., and will be ready for occupancy by Dec. 1. R. E. Dorough, vice-president of the warehouse company said.

ONLY 1 LOSS IN 9 GAMES

Fliers on Top as 1st Half Of Little League Play Ends

The Delta Fliers are winners of the first half of a split season, in College Park Little League baseball play, with an 8-1 record. They will face the winner of the second half, which gets underway this week, for the league championship.

The Fliers suffered their only loss of the season to the Post 50 Braves, the team which finished second in the first half race. The Braves had a 5-4 record.

Third, Presbyterian Tigers, 4-5; fourth, College Park Lions, 1-9.

The league will celebrate the opening of its new lighted ball park July 1 with a fish fry followed by a game between the Braves and Tigers. The new diamond is in Peter Pan Park opposite S. R. Young School.

All future games in the College Park Little League will be played under the lights with contests scheduled to start at 7 p. m.

Rebels Win

The Braves walloped the Tigers, 8-3, in the second league game of the week, also deadlocking the second place race. As things now stand, the Indians and Rebels are in top spot with four wins, two losses each and the Braves and Tigers share second place with two wins, four losses apiece.

Southpaw Doug Garrison, on the mound for the Rebels, pitched a three-hitter and walked only two to pace the winners over the Indians. He struck out seven. Phil Darnell was starting pitcher for the Indians but was relieved by Jerry Canady in the sixth inning. The Rebels collected nine hits off the two pitchers.

Tommy Johnson was standout batter for the Rebels. He had two singles and a triple in three times at the plate. Rebel captain Jimmy Futral hit two for four and Jimmy Mays punched out two hits in three trips to the plate.

Forrest Buchanan hurled the Braves to their win over the Tigers. Wayne Free was the losing pitcher. Jerry Gazaway, Braves third baseman, had three for four as top slugger of the day and Ken Pruitt, Braves first sacker, punched out a double and a single in three times at bat.

New Player

Manager Jim McKee of the Hapeville Little League Rebels announced Tuesday his team has signed Lanny Waddy, 2976 Springdale Rd., onetime first baseman for the 1951 Little League Sluggers. Waddy will take over first base for the team.

Nick Kirkland was moved up from the Little League farm team this week to take a spot in the Braves' lineup, manager Pat Coggins announced. Also up from farm teams is Gerald Sudduth, 575 Cherry St., who will work out with the Rebels' pitching staff.

The South Fulton Midgets lost an 8-7 decision to the Adamsville Midgets in a preleague opening practice game at Adamsville.

Softball League

Delta Flyers and Hapeville Methodist moved into a tie for first place in the Hapeville Softball League this week.

Sammy Lewis held the Minit men to three hits, all in the fifth inning. The Methodists touched two Minit pitchers for six hits. Steve Patrick, Carlton Dodd and Gene Foster paced the attack, each hitting a two-bagger.

In the only other game of the week Rocket Diner hit the win column for the first time, downing First Baptist 10-9.

Kiwanis To Sponsor TV Programs on Rehabilitation

The West End Kiwanis Club has voted to sponsor a series of television programs in September based on rehabilitation projects and aids available to physically handicapped persons.

Marguerite Ewing Schott, who will serve as co-ordinator of the program, asked the group to sponsor the program as a public service and Bruce Hall, official from the division of vocational rehabilitation of the Georgia Department of Education, pledged the support of his organization to the project.

Hall told the Kiwanis members that there are 4,000,000 persons in the United States that are either permanently or temporarily unable to work due to a physical handicap.

30,000 GEORGIANS

Hall reported that there are 30,000 people in Georgia who are in need of vocational rehabilitation and that the state is unable to reach such a large number with present facilities.

He also said that the state rehabilitation division had, through training, been able to remove 421 persons from the welfare and social security rolls in the last 12 months through extensive training for suitable jobs.

AID TO HANDICAPPED

According to Hall, $735,000 is paid in government aid to physically handicapped people in the Fulton County area each year. In the last 16 months, Hall said that his organization had taken 63 persons from government relief rolls in the Fulton area, had 42 persons now receiving grants and 29 people still applying for relief were receiving rehabilitation to re-enter the self-supporting role.

A definite time and station for the program will be announced at a later date and details of the program are still being worked out.

FEATURE REHABILITATION

The program will feature the physically handicapped person, however, and the processes and ways he can rehabilitate himself. The series also will include information concerning particular agencies that specialize in aiding the physically handicapped.

Hall told club members that vocational rehabilitation for the physically handicapped was not only a job for his agency but that the program also needed the aid of individuals, civic groups and all voluntary organizations.

He announced that materials and patients from schools under the jurisdiction of the rehabilitation division will be available for the program.

The two speakers were introduced by Dr. Sidney Janus, Kiwanis member who proposed the project to the club.
